Soviet Appeals To China For Cooperation

GOP Chairman Seeks Party Unity

Chou Chills Unity Move In Moscow

Brezhnev Talks 80 Minutes On Red Agreement

By FRED COLEMAN

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's new party leader appealed Friday for unity of the world Communist movement, but Chinese Premier Chou En-lai failed to join in the applause for a call to a new conference of the world's Red leaders.

Chou, on hand with a tough-minded Peking delegation for Bolshevik Revolution anniversary ceremonies, cast a chill on proceedings even in advance of first party secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev's speech by paying homage at the grave of Joseph Stalin. De-Stalinization under Nikita Khrushchev had been a point of hot Peking-Moscow dispute.

The Red Chinese premier sat directly behind Brezhnev, virtually looking over his shoulder, while Khrushchev's successor as party leader delivered an 80-minute review of Soviet domestic and foreign policies and noted that "there is an obvious need for a new international meeting of the fraternal parties."

Khrush Prime Target

Khrushchev, prime target of the Chinese in the long dispute, also had wanted a world Communist meeting, a project scornfully denounced by Peking. But against the background of Brezhnev's words, the appeal this time had at least a note of conciliation.

Chou, however, was the only one of the party leaders present from a dozen Communist-ruled nations who withheld applause. Chou did applaud vigorously, however, when Brezhnev remarked that all Communists have one common goal. In advance of the Kremlin meeting, Peking's broadcasts had called for Red unity against "imperialism headed by the United States."

Policy Statement

The eve of the Bolshevik Revolution anniversary is invariably an occasion for Soviet policy statements, as the anniversary itself —Saturday — is the occasion for a parade displaying Soviet might to Communist

Leadership Of Steel Union Is Challenged

Secty.-Treas. Abel Will Oppose David McDonald

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The first real threat to David J. McDonald's 12-year leadership of the United Steelworkers of America, AFL-CIO, developed Friday as Secretary-Treasurer I. W. Abel announced his candidacy for president.

The showdown between McDonald, who is seeking re-election, and Abel will come next Feb. 12 when the million-member union chooses officers for four-year terms.

McDonald, 61, was opposed for the first and only time in 1957 by Donald C. Rarick, a mill hand from nearby McKeesport, Pa., but was re-elected easily.

A statement issued by Abel and two district directors seeking the other top USW posts, said:

"The United Steelworkers of America has been a great organization fashioned by its first president, the beloved Philip Murray. We intend to see that it remains a great union, owned by and responsible to the will of the membership."

Contacted by The Associated Press, Abel declined to elaborate at this time.

Abel, 56, is unknown to the general public, having stood in the shadows while McDonald held the spotlight.

A quiet, unassuming man, Abel is well-grounded in the labor movement and well-thought of by the union rank and file, according to associates and observers.

Running with Abel are Walter J. Burke, director of District 32 at Milwaukee, Wis.; and Joseph P. Molony, District 4 director at Buffalo, N.Y. Burke is a candidate for secretary-treasurer and Molony is a candidate for vice president. Howard Hague currently is vice president.

Assembly Line Is Idle

Production of cars came to a halt in Dallas, Texas, Friday, as about 1,400 workers at the Ford Motor Co. assembly plant were idle as the result of a UAW strike over local issues. This scene of stopped production spread through nine of the company's plants. (AP Photofax)

UAW Strikes 9 Ford Plants As Contract Talks Collapse

By WHITEY SAWYER

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co., booming along with record sales and production, suffered a staggering blow Friday as the United Auto Workers Union struck nine key plants.

The strikes came over failure to settle local-level contracts which supplement the national labor agreement reached Sept. 18.

The at-plant contracts generally cover working conditions, seniority and overtime provisions and such.

The walkout by some 25,500 UAW members shut down four assembly plants, two stamping plants and three parts manufacturing plants.

A Ford spokesman said the strikes at the assembly plants cut the company's auto production — about 10,000 per day — by 16 per cent. Truck production, rated at 1,800 daily, was cut 34 per cent.

And, the spokesman said, if the strikes continue at the parts plant, other auto assembly plants would be affected in time.

Malcolm L. Denise, a Ford vice president and chief negotiator, said strikes called Friday morning against plants of Ford Motor Co., "are completely unnecessary. We have worked diligently with the UAW, on both the national and local levels, to settle hundreds of unresolved issues — many of which should not even be on the bargaining table."

The strikes shut down the Dallas, Tex., assembly plant, Ford cars and trucks; the Louisville, Ky., assembly plant, Ford cards and trucks; the Michigan Ford truck plant at Wayne, Mich., and the Wayne Ford and Mercury assembly plant; the Chicago Heights and Buffalo, N.Y., stamping plants; the Sheffield, Ala., aluminum foundry; the Sterling, Mich., plant, chassis assemblies; and the Ypsilanti, Mich., plant, miscellaneous parts.

The Mercury assembly plant at St. Louis, Mo., postponed its strike deadline until Monday morning. The Bedford, Ohio, stamping plant also had a strike deadline of 10 a.m. Friday but reportedly settled shortly before that time.

Ford has a total of about 160,000 production workers in 90 bargaining units around the country.

LBJ Scotches Talk Of European Trip

By FRANK CORMIER

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson, relaxing and working at his LBL Ranch, moved indirectly Friday to scotch speculation that he or Hubert H. Humphrey might travel to Europe before the inauguration.

Malcolm Kilduff, acting White House press secretary, told newsmen that no travel is presently contemplated or in the offing. He said this applies both to Johnson and Sen. Humphrey, the vice president-elect.

Although Kilduff spoke in response to questions, he was well-primed for such inquiries.

Kilduff said Johnson obviously wants to get together with North Atlantic Treaty Organization leaders. But he said there has been no discussion of when or where to hold such meetings.

Other White House sources said it was their understanding that Humphrey would undertake no official travel prior to the inauguration.

The State Department is understood to have advised Johnson against any quick trip abroad, citing among other reasons the question of presidential succession at a time when there is no vice president.

In addition, diplomatic sources have said the pressures of the political campaign in this country have not allowed the time to prepare carefully for any tour. They say careful planning is especially needed in view of the changes in government in Great Britain and the Soviet Union.

Holy Council Debates Work Of Missionaries

VATICAN CITY (AP) — African drum beats, the sound of cymbals, clapping and native chants echoed in St. Peter's as Pope Paul VI visited the Vatican Ecumenical Council and opened its debate Friday on missionary work.

The pontiff told the prelates he hoped "that all the Church be missionary, that even the individual believers — as much as possible —become missionaries in spirit and word."

It was the first visit by a Pope to a regular working meeting of the council since it began in the presence of Pope John XXIII in October 1962.

Pope Paul said he chose this day because he wanted to be present when the council started debating a schema on missionary activity.

The day's session opened with the Pope and more than 2,000 council fathers attending an Ethiopian rite Mass. Student priests from Rome's Ethiopian College provided the music. At the end of the Mass, when the drum beats and clapping mounted in a sign of joy, many of the bishops sitting in the tiers of seats joined in the rhythmic hand-clapping themselves.

Pope Paul smiled.

In a gesture said to symbolize his support of the concept of papal power shared with bishops in governing the church, he took a place in the middle of 12 cardinals presiding over the council. He sat with them instead of his own throne above and behind their dais.

In a brief speech, Pope Paul praised the document on missionary activities, saying he expected it to win easy approval. But he added there was need for "further improvements." He did not elaborate.

Building Collapses

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Eight persons were killed and an undetermined number injured Friday in the collapse of a 13-story building at Piracicaba, an industrial city 100 miles from Sao Paulo.

2 White Men Charged In Negro Deaths

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The FBI announced two white men were arrested and charged Friday with the murder of two Negroes whose torsos were found in an arm of the Mississippi River.

The FBI identified the white men as James Ford Seale, 29, and Charles Marcus Edwards, 31-year-old Ku Klux Klansman, both of Meadville.

Roy Moore, head of the Jackson FBI office, said local and federal officers arrested the two at their homes. They were charged in the deaths of Charlie Eddie Moore and Henry Hezekiah Dee, whose bodies were found in Old River, a branch of the Mississippi, in Madison Parish, La., last July.

The cases attracted wide attention when the first of the remains was found July 12 by James Bowles, a Tallulah, La., resident, while fishing. The discovery came as officers were seeking the bodies of three missing civil rights workers who disappeared near Philadelphia, Miss., earlier in the summer.

A second torso was found in the same area the next day and effects identified it as that of Dee, who had lived in Chicago in 1962-63 but returned to Roxie to work at a planing mill.

South Viet Nam Premier Faces New Uprisings

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Mushrooming opposition led Premier Tran Van Huong to beg South Viet Nam's people by radio Friday night for breathing space for his infant civilian government. He urged them to give the government a chance to rule before tearing it to pieces.

Prospects of hostile demonstrations by student and religious factions menaced the Cabinet that took over only last Wednesday — with the diplomatic blessing of the United States — from Maj. Gen. Nugyen Khanh's military regime.

Trouble could hit Saturday or Sunday.

Students were expected to take to the streets this weekend in a demand for dissolution of the government. Buddhist and Roman Catholic elements also expressed opposition but, according to some reports, agreed to hold off mass action for at least two weeks.

Huong acknowledged that his government has some weaknesses, but called for unity and national discipline to save the nation from communism.

The 61-year-old former teacher took to the air a few hours after conferring with U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor.

Other American officials talked informally with leaders of Vietnamese pressure groups in an effort to get them to ease up on Huong's administration, to which are pinned U.S. hopes for stability in the war against the Communist Viet Cong.

Shroud Fouls Mars Probe, Experts Say

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A protective shroud that "hung up" on the spacecraft apparently caused the failure of the Mariner 3 Mars probe. The space agency hoped to take corrective action on a twin craft, Mariner 4, in time to launch it within two weeks.

Experts were taking a hard look at radio data in an effort to pinpoint the exact reason for the failure.

No. 1 suspect was the 300-pound fiberglass shroud that was to protect Mariner 3 from aerodynamic buffeting during the few minutes the Atlas-Agena D booster rocket pushed upward through the earth's atmosphere Thursday.

Once in space, the shroud was to eject. But Jack N. James, Mariner project director, reported Friday that data showed it apparently did not separate cleanly and fall away.

Retention of the heavy shroud, he said, would explain several failures that were radioed to earth shortly after the launching.

Harold Wilson Wants To Visit U.S. President

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson is trying to arrange a summit meeting with President Johnson in Washington next January for a sweeping review of Anglo-American policies on western and international problems, British government sources said Friday.

The disclosure came as diplomatic sources reported that the United States and Britain are agreed in principle to push for revamping of the shaky North Atlantic Greaty Organization (NATO). But the sources emphasized that both Washington and London are firmly opposed To French President Charles de Gaulle's concept of a Europe armed with its own nuclear deterrent.

Wilson originally had planned to go to Washington next month but changed his mind because of pressing domestic problems confronting his new Labor government, according to informants.

Leaders Told To End Fuss Over Defeat

Skirmish Presages Full-Scale Drive For Party Control

By LARRY OSIUS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Chairman Dean Burch urged party leaders Friday to quit bickering and count their blessings.

But even as he spoke, there was fresh criticism of the conservative leadership of Sen. Barry Goldwater, the party's presidential nominee who went down to a resounding defeat in Tuesday's election.

The skirmishing could presage a full-fledged drive by Republican liberals and moderates to recapture control of the party which went to Goldwater at the GOP presidential nominating convention.

Burch, in his plea for party unity, said he will call a Republican National Committee meeting after the first of the year to discuss "all questions of interest to the party, including that of my chairmanship."

"I seek to lead, not to dictate, and I will continue that leadership as long as the Republican party wants me to," he said.

Different Ideas

At least one state GOP leader had different ideas. Wisconsin GOP Chairman Talbot Peterson suggested former Vice President Richard M. Nixon for the job. Peterson said Goldwater's candidacy had carried to defeat a number of Republican hopefuls, including Wilbur Renk, the GOP Senate nominee in Wisconsin.

Nixon said Thursday that he would not seek the job or encourage those who want him to take it.

From Rep. Delbert Latta of Ohio came another proposed chairman: Ray Bliss, the party chieftain in Ohio and an acknowledged "old pro."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York went further. He said Goldwater should step down as titular leader of the party, adding in a New York news conference that President Johnson's landslide victory was a repudiation of what he called "radical views" of the GOP ticket.

Counting Blessings

Goldwater said earlier this week he intends to retain leadership. And Burch has given no hint that he will quit willingly.

In his statement, Burch said: "I think we should count our blessings. We have a solid financial foundation. We have an army of volunteers eager to do battle. We have active party organizations in every one of the 50 states. It now remains for us to demonstrate that we can unite and win in 1966."

From the West came differing views on Goldwater's campaign and candidacy.

Arthur D. Larson, onetime assistant to the latest Republican president, Dwight D. Eisenhower, said Goldwater is "the guy who really crushed the Republican party."

Battle Goes On

He added in a Logan, Utah interview: "The conservatives are telling us we aren't true Republicans. I was with Eisenhower in the middle of the greatest landslide the party ever had and now the element that took us to its greatest defeat is pelting us with this" statement.

But in San Marino, Calif., the public relations director of the militantly conservative John Birch Society, former Rep. John Roussellot, said "Sen. Goldwater has been willing to fight for a strong, conservative position and is to be congratulated for articulating it so well."

The battle for conservatism is a long-haul proposition, Roussellot said, "as the forces of collectivism have been working to undermine our free society for better than 70 years."

Joan Kennedy To Visit Ireland

Congolese Retake Two Key Towns

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Congolese government forces backed by white mercenaries were reported Friday to have recaptured two more key towns in a twin-pronged offensive aimed at the main pro-Communist rebel stronghold of Stanleyville.

The government drive increased concern over possible reprisals against 1,000 Americans and other foreigners in rebel-held territory in the eastern Congo.

Reports here said Congolese troops and white mercenaries, supported by planes, had retaken strategic Kindu and Ikela from the rebels.

Kindu, capital of Maniema Province, is the southern gateway to Stanleyville, capital of the rebel - proclaimed "Congolese People's Republic," about 240 miles to the north. Its recapture was considered the most important government victory since the major offensive was launched more than a month ago.

Salinger Would Like Job At NAB

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Pierre Salinger, mentioned as a possibility for the $75,000-a-year job as president of the National Association of Broadcasters, said Friday: "I have not heard from them yet, but it is a job I most certainly would consider accepting."

Salinger, California Democratic senator by appointment who lost in Tuesday's election to Republican George Murphy, is here vacationing.

In Washington, Willard Schroeder, chairman of the NAB and of its presidential selection committee, said reports Salinger might get the job are without foundation.

Speculation Grows Over Successor To Humphrey

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Vice-President-elect Hubert H. Humphrey went on vacation Friday amid a flurry of speculation about who would replace him both as senator from Minnesota and Democratic whip in the Senate.

President Johnson's running-mate flew with his family to the Virgin Islands for a two-week holiday to rest up from the long campaign.

In the capital there was speculation that Humphrey's post as Democratic whip — (assistant Senate leader) — might be filled either by Sen. John O. Pastore of Rhode Island or Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana.

The odds appear to favor the peppery, 57-year-old Pastore, who made such a rousing keynote speech at the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City. But Long, has made no secret of wanting the whip's job.

As for Humphrey's Senate seat, a listing of potential successors shows Minnesota Democratic Gov. Karl F. Rolvaag; Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman, a former Minnesota governor, and Minnesota Atty. Gen. Walter Mondale.

Mondale was one of those who worked out the seating compromise at the Atlantic City convention involving the rival all-white and Negro delegations from Mississippi.

Humphrey's current Senate term runs through 1966. He said Thursday there was a possibility he would resign before his inauguration as vice president on Jan. 20 so that his successor would be able to gain seniority in the 89th Congress.

Humphrey said he had held preliminary discussions about the appointment of the successor with Gov. Rolvaag, whose job it is to name the man after Humphrey's resignation.

Record Vote Cast Tuesday Across Nation

About 200,000 Fail To Vote For President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Still incomplete returns show that more than 69.3 million Americans — a record — voted last Tuesday. But about 200,000 of them didn't vote for president.

With returns still to be tabulated from about 1,300 precincts — less than one per cent of the voting units — the total vote for president is 69,168,883. That includes some 200,000 votes cast for unpledged Democratic electors in Alabama, and not credited to President Johnson.

A spot check of the total votes in the biggest race in each state and the District of Columbia showed a turnout of 69,354,603, some 186,000 more than the presidential race attracted.

With the remaining precincts to be counted plus absentee ballots and minor party votes in many states the total turnout appears likely to approach 70 million. That would be about halfway between the previous high of 68.8 million in the 1960 presidential election and the prediction of state officials and qualified observers that this year's turnout would reach 71.1 million.

In several states the voters apparently had more interest in Senate or gubernatorial races than in the contest for president.

Senator candidates drew more votes than Johnson and Republican nominee Barry Goldwater in California, Florida, Maine, Nevada and Pennsylvania.

And gubernatorial races drew more votes in Arkansas, Massachusetts, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, Rhode Island, Vermont and Wisconsin.

The latest unofficial presidential returns, from 174,519 of the nation's 175,843 precincts, gave Johnson 42,328,350 votes to Goldwaters's 26,640,178.

Maryland Briefs

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Five members of the University of Maryland faculty received $1,000 awards for excellence in teaching Friday night.

The receipients were Robert W. Detenbeck in physics, Richard B. Hornick in the school of medicine, George M. Smerk of business administration, George R. Merrill in industrial education and Walter D. Jacobs in government.

BALTIMORE (AP) — James S. Dembowski, 48-year-old member of the Maryland House of Delegates, suffered an apparent heart attack Friday while on his way to a special session in Annapolis.

The Democratic delegate from Baltimore's 1st District was hospitalized in an oxygen tent. He was in a car with other legislators when he was stricken.

MIDDLE RIVER, Md. (AP) — Harry Norris, 50, was killed Friday when he was run over by a Baltimore County garbage truck which he had been loading.

BALTIMORE (AP)—The percentage of unemployed in Maryland dropped in September to the lowest in seven years, the Department of Employment Security reported Friday.

There were 37,400 jobless, 3.1 per cent of the total available work force. A year ago, the unemployment rate was 3.5 per cent.

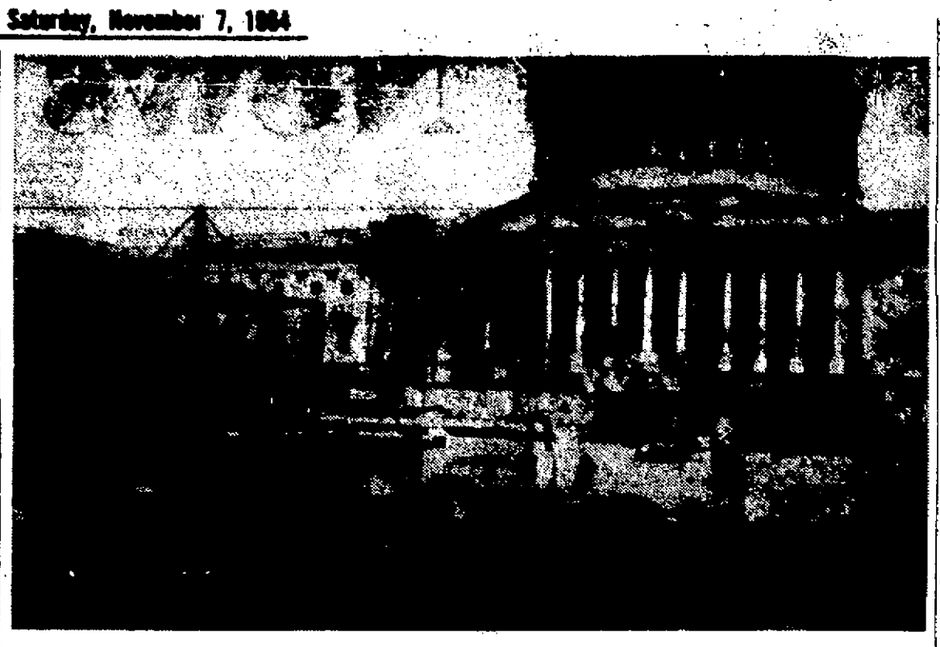

The number of those with jobs rose to a record 1,187,000. It was the fourth consecutive month that the employed reached a new high total.

GOP Survivors Air Problem Of Rebuilding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of "moderate to liberal" Republican House survivors of Tuesday's GOP election debacle conferred here Friday on how to "rebuild the party" in what they call the tradition of Lincoln.

At a break in the day long session, spokesmen said no immediate conclusion was reached except to work with "like minded groups" in Congress and around the country to return the GOP to a moderate, constructive stance.

"We are among the Republicans who will have to rebuild the Republican party out of the ashes," said Rep. John Lindsay, R-N.Y., who like all members of the informal GOP group ran well ahead of the national ticket in his congressional district.

"We hope we can work with other moderate groups through out the country to return the party to the tradition of Lincoln," he said.

All members of the group, unofficially dubbed the "Wednesday Club" because of its regular midweek afternoon meetings over the past few years, supported Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton for the GOP presidential nomination although some embraced the national ticket after Sen. Barry M. Goldwater was picked to head it.

Chou Chills

leaders gathered atop Lenin's tomb in Red Square.

Brezhnev discussed foreign policy at length, and at times seemed to be trying to mollify his Chinese listeners. He reaffirmed Soviet support for Peking's claims to Nationalist-held Formosa and vowed Soviet backing for Communist efforts in Viet Nam.

But Brezhnev also repeated the Soviet theoretical contention that in the conditions of a modern nuclear age, "a world war is not inevitable." The Chinese have criticized this theory as conflicting with Leninism.

Calls For Vigilance

However, Brezhnev tempered this remark — seeming to reflect the viewpoint of the Soviet military leadership — by calling for vigilance and saying:

"We never forget that there are aggressive forces operating in the world, forces interested in the utmost heating up of the international atmosphere."

Soviet military leaders had seemed to be disturbed, in Khrushchev's era, at the idea that a shift of emphasis to the Soviet consumer economy might entail cutbacks in heavy industry and military spending.

Brezhnev also expressed what might be interpreted as the beginning of a tough Soviet attitude on the questions of Berlin and Germany when he said Soviet proposals regarding the question were the only basis for safeguarding European security. He also denounced North Atlantic Treaty Organization plans for a multinational nuclear force, and vowed continuing Soviet support for Communist Cuba.

Gen. Khanh Urges U.S. To Fight In No. Viet Nam

SAIGON (UPI) — Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh advised the United States Friday to take the war to Communist North Viet Nam and Red China. But as he spoke political turmoil increased in Saigon and a new crisis threatened.

Khanh, the former military premier, now chief of the armed forces, spoke to newsmen at Vithanh, a provincial capital in the Mekong Delta 100 miles southwest of Saigon, while on an inspection trip.

He said he told U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara "six or seven months ago" while he was premier that the balance of power in Asia will swing in favor of Communist China unless the United States acts.

"China has the manpower while the U.S. has the firepower," he said he told them.

Khanh recalled that during strategy planning talks he told the two American cabinet members "now if you wait until the Red Chinese have their own A-bomb there will no longer be this balance."

He was asked if he thought the election of President Johnson would have any effect on U.S. policy in Viet Nam. He began by saying he no longer was premier and commented in English:

"I cannot make the decision to extend the war. Let's say I advise. The U.S. has the means to win this war. The only thing is whether the U. S. government likes to win or not. We have had to fight for 20 years. And we would like to stop the war. And by stopping, I mean winning. . . "

Bolivia Regime Adopts Pro-U.S. Foreign Policy

By JOSE M. ORLANDO

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — President Rene Barrientos pledged Friday his new military regime to a solid pro-United States foreign policy.

"We must keep particularly close relations with the United States, as well as with other countries to which our political thinking and our economic development are closely linked," the 44-year-old air force general said in an interview.

The U.S.-trained Barrientos headed the fiercely fought revolt that overthrew strongman President Victor Paz Estenssoro Wednesday, and he now appears to be in firm control of the nation.

This barren, tin-mining country, perched high in the Andes, depends heavily on U.S. economic aid. The United States has poured in more than $300 million in the last 12 years.

American recognition of Barrientos' regime has not come yet. It has been reported that the Johnson administration, which supported Paz Estenssoro, is pondering the upheaval with some misgivings.

"We hope to obtain recognition soon," Barrientos said.

Venezuela broke diplomatic relations with Bolivia Friday because it is that country's policy to not recognize a junta that seizes power from a legally elected government.

Barrientos said his 16-man military junta "will hold free and democratic elections as soon as possible, perhaps in six months, no later than in one year."

Barrientos, a soft-spoken, articulate man, said the revolt that overthrew Paz "had been simmering for a long time, because Dr. Paz's regime was engaged in a senseless fight to divide our people, to repress and murder opponents."

D.C. Policeman Pistol-Whipped

WASHINGTON (AP) — A motorcycle policeman was disarmed, pistol - whipped and kicked in the stomach Friday when he responded to a report of a holdup in progress at a liquor store.

Pvt. Theodore C. Harris, 52, said he was cruising nearby when he heard the holdup report on his radio. He looked in the window of the store but saw nothing suspicious. He unbuckled the flap of his holster and entered the store.

As he did so, two holdup men who had been lying on the floor, jumped up. One stuck the muzzle of a snub-nosed revolver in Harris' stomach and took away the officer's gun.

The man then hit Harris on his helmet, smashing it and cutting his right cheek. The officer fell to the floor. One of the men kicked him in the stomach and said:

"Don't move or we'll kill you."

The bandits, who fled in a dark green car with Maryland plates, took an undetermined amount of money.

Pay-TV To Quit In California

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Pay television announced Friday night it will suspend operations in Los Angeles and San Francisco almost immediately in face of rejection by California voters.

The suspension described as temporary, was announced by Sylvester L. (Pat) Weaver, president of Subscription Television Inc., who said the company will devote its resources to a fight against the ballot initiative which outlays pay-TV.

The decision marked at least a temporary end to the most elaborate experiment yet conducted in home viewing on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Weaver told a stockholders meeting attended by about 300 persons that the company planned to file a suit with the state Supreme Court asking it to declare unconstitutional Proposition 15 which was approved by voters Tuesday.

Bank Robber Is Captured

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — An unarmed man took $760 from a cash drawer in the Annapolis Banking and Trust Co. Friday but was captured before he got out of the bank.

Police said the man would be charged with the robbery. He was believed to be the man who robbed the same bank in 1963.

Capt. Walter Mustermann, chief of detectives, said a bank official ordered the robber to sit down as he was walking out with the money. He said the man complied with the request and waited until police arrived.

Mrs. Woodward Jones, a teller at the bank, told police the man walked around behind the counter where she was working and demanded the money from the cash drawer. She said he had his hands concealed in his pockets.

Police said the man had parked a car in a no-parking zone in front of the Governor's mansion about 50 yards from the bank entrance.

Fire Company Gets Alarms

The Cresaptown Volunteer Fire Company answered two calls late yesterday afternoon. Luck rode with the fire fighters both times.

The first call came in at 5:45 p.m. from Mrs. E. Hedrick on Grant Road in Cresaptown. Firemen learned that trash being burned at the back of the house spread to adjoining woods. The blaze was out when firemen arrived.

As fire fighters were on their way back to the station they were notified that a brush fire had broken out on an island between the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory property and the Maryland line.

The volunteers were able to return home after they were told the ABL fire company was going to put out the blaze. Two pieces of equipment and 13 men responded to the alarm.

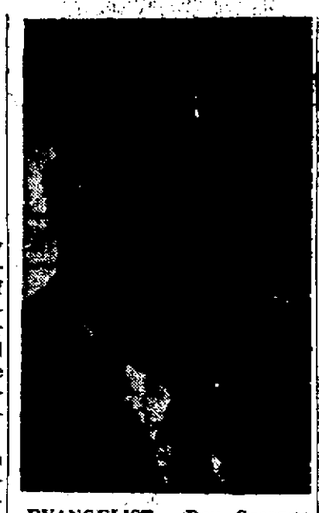

Fred Knobloch, public relations officer for the company, said trash should not be burned out of doors during the present drought unless the fire is under supervision at all times.

He also warned that when leaves are burned, the smouldering ash which remains should be wet down thoroughly especially when the home is near the woods.

Two Killed Trying To Avoid Police

A Pendleton County, W. Va., man and his passenger were killed Wednesday night when their car overturned during a high-speed chase by West Virginia State Police.

Cpl. W. W. H. Huff of Franklin said that he and Trooper R. L. Midkiff had received a report that Ronald Arbogast, 20-year-old Cherry Grove man, was driving recklessly on State Route 28.

When the two officers approached the Arbogast car, the driver, attempting to get away, lost control of the vehicle and it upset and turned over five times before coming to rest on the roadway in front of the Post Office in Cherry Grove.

Riding with the young man was Mrs. Elizabeth Nicholas, 62, also of Cherry Grove, a friend of the young man. Both the driver and Mrs. Nicholas were thrown 60 feet beyond the wrecked car and were killed instantly.

Mr. Arbogast was unemployed and did not have a driver's license. Services for Mr. Arbogast and Mrs. Nicholas will be held today. A son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Arbogast, he is also survived by six brothers and sisters.

New Section Of Rt. 40 Opens Soon

The last of the torturous mountain roads on U. S. Route 40 in Allegany County has been eliminated with completion of the Town Hill-Green Ridge Relocation, John B. Funk, chairman-director of the State Roads Commission, announced.

The new highway which is south of the old road will be opened to traffic at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday, November 17, Mr. Funk said.

The old U. S. 40 used to climb to the top of Town Hill and Green Ridge Mountains by means of a winding two-lane road.

John E. Bushby, district engineer for the State Roads Commission, said the Town Hill segment—four and one-half miles long, is not dualized, but the 3.2-mile Green Ridge section is two-laned.

For this winter, only one lane of the Green Ridge segment will be used, carrying both eastbound and westbound traffic. Next spring, the other dual lane which is separated by a wide grass strip, will be blacktopped.

The Town Hill section was graded by S. T. Brotemarkle Company of Cumberand, while the Green Ridge contract, which involved the second deepest cut on a Maryland highway and also the deepest fill, went to Nello Teer Company of Durham, N. C.

The Teer firm completed its grading earlier in the year and the landscaping by October 28.

The blacktopping on the 3.2-mile western end of the project is being handled by Middlecreek Construction Company of Winfield, Pa., while the Town Hill eastern end is being done by Kline Paving Company of Frederick.

The deadline for their contracts this fall is a completion date of November 15, Mr. Bushby said.

The second deepest cut on a state highway is at the top of Green Ridge on the new road. Here the contractor had to dig and blast down 132 feet into the rock strata.

Just east of there over Terrapin Creek Hollow, is the deepest fill ever made in the state—160 feet. Beneath it is the longest concrete box culvert in the state—570 feet long.

Still another record breaker in the project is the 810-foot long corrugated steel pipe three feet in diameter that had to be laid near the foot of the west slope of Green Ridge.

A dual bridge 207-feet long and constructed of concrete carries Route 40 over 15-Mile Creek at the Green Ridge Forestry Camp.

Cost of the newly-completed portion totalled approximately $5,200,000.

Forest Fire Extinguished Near City

More than 100 firemen battled a raging forest fire on Wills Mountain yesterday for about five hours before bringing it under control.

The flames spread over an area between the Allegany Instrument Company to the Allegany County Infirmary before firemen from five companies had it under control.

A spokesman for the District Forestry Department said the cause of the blaze is still undetermined. The fire reportedly engulfed from 20 to 30 acres.

The blaze was first reported around 12:35 a. m., and firemen from LaVale, Bowman's Addition, Corriganville, Baltimore Pike and Bedford Road responded to the scene.

City firemen from East Side Station went to the scene at 1:10 a. m. and remained there until 4:19 a. m. It was thought the blaze might sweep into the city. East Side firemen aided in the battle by laying in lines.

City Police were also summoned to the scene after traffic became heavy in the Holland Street and Piedmont Avenue sections.

Approximately 15 pieces of equipment was used by the volunteer firemen to fight the blaze which was swept by high winds.

Firemen said there were no homes in immediate danger. However, at one point residents of Holland Street, near Sunbury Avenue, were in fear of their homes.

Also assisting with the fight were 26 boys from the Green Ridge Forestry Camp and four forest rangers.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Dave and I have been going together for three years. He is now a junior in college and we plan to be married when he graduates.

Recently when I gave a pint of blood to a friend who was injured in an accident I learned my blood type is O negative. Dave was upset when I told him because he is a B positive. He says it is possible that we could not have a child who would survive because of the differences in our blood types.

After hours of talking it over Dave told me perhaps we should break our engagement and go separate ways. I love him and I was certain he loved me, but now I'm so distraught I'm not even sure of my own name. Please tell me if Dave is right about this or whether it could be an excuse to break off with me? Thank you. —INDIGO

Dear Indigo: The combination of your blood type and Dave's could indeed produce children with blood problems.

Many years ago such babies died, and no one knew why. Today when physicians know of this condition in advance (and yours will) the babies can be given transfusions at birth and grow up to be well and healthy.

I suggest you and Dave go to a specialist. He will give you the facts.

Dear Ann Landers: At the risk of sounding like a broken record I'm going to ask a question you've probably answered dozens of times. I have yet to see a practical solution anywhere.

I'm fed to the tonsils with bridal showers and baby showers. Today I have to go out and buy six gifts. It is impossible to avoid these little parties because my sisters, my sister-in-law, my mother-in-law, my cousins and neighbors are all invited and we are a closely-knit group. We are all expected to show up.

Do you have an answer? Sign me — FINANCIALLY EMBARRASSED.

Dear Fi-Em: At the risk of sounding like a broken record myself here's the answer for the umpteenth time: Get together with your sisters, your sister-in-law, mother-in-law — pitch in $1 each and buy one useful gift. This makes more sense than six rubber ducks or a half dozen pair of booties.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a girl 15 with an unusual problem — people insist on giving me their old clothes.

My parents are not rich or poor — but sort of in the middle. I have all the clothes I need and I've always felt neatly dressed. Yet the women I babysit for, my grandmother's housekeeper and the ladies from my mother's church auxiliary are forever dropping off boxes of dresses their children have outgrown or just got tired of.

I know these people mean well and I don't want to hurt anyone's feelings but they are either too large or too small, or I just don't like the way they look on me.

I've thought of accepting the clothes gracefully then throwing them out, but this doesn't seem right. Please tell me what to do. —SHMOTTAS.

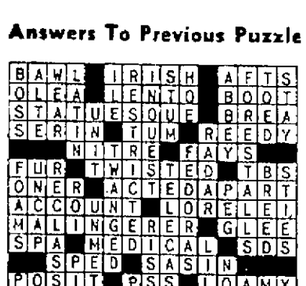

Dear Shmottas: Thank the people nicely, let them know you appreciate their kindness but tell them you don't need extra clothes. Suggest they call Goodwill Industries. This wonderful organization makes sure the used clothing gets into the hands of those who do need this kind of help.

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the boobytraps of teen-age drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Secrets Of Charm

Hosiery Hints

As we all know, nylon stockings have become the delight of all women. Yet, few women know the many tricks to wearing them.

Did you know, for instance, that color in hosiery can make your legs appear either slimmer or curvier, depending on your individual needs? Dark colors make them appear heavier, while light colors make them look slim. Remember, dark emphasizes, light neutralizes.

Girls who have short legs and who want them to look longer should select a stocking with a little heel treatment and, if possible, should wear a nude stocking. On the other hand, the long-legged girl is able to wear a prominent heel since it "cuts" the leg. To minimize thickness in the angle area, it's best to wear a stocking with a slender, pointed heel.

A girl with a heavy leg should never wear seamless stockings. A stocking punctuated with a seam trims the leg and gives her much more flattery. Seamless stockings fill out the overslim calf.

Stockings must be chosen carefully, as each type is created for a purpose. There is mesh, a 30-Denier, a 15-Denier and a 10-Denier, for instance — all different. If a woman is wearing a casual tweed suit, a mesh stocking, not delicate gossamer one, will blend and look right. She wouldn't wear it any more than she'd wear satin shoes with a countryish tweed suit. One the other hand, don't choose mesh and then wear it all the time. Spiderweb stockings should, of course, be worn only for evening wear.

Too few shoppers choose hosiery for the proper weight. And this is very important if you want to get maximum wear out of your stockings. There are sheer-looking stockings that are strong enough to last four months, but women just don't buy them.

Correct sizing is another must for stocking-buyers. Your stockings must not fit too loosely or too tightly. Tight stockings pave the way for foot friction which, in turn, causes a lot of discomfort. Wrinkles give rise to blisters. Avoid this trouble with sensible stocking selection.

FIGURE-ANALYSIS for perfect-fitting foundation garments is thoroughly discussed in the booklet, "Figured For You." To get your copy of this purse-sized guide to better figure control send 10c and a stamped, return envelope to John Robert Powers, in care of this newspaper.

Market Closes Friday After Irregular Climb

NEW YORK (AP)—Selective strength in blue chips gave the stock market an irregular advance Friday in livelier trading.

There was little in the way of group leadership and the trend was muddied most of the day by a kind of random swapping of big blocks of stock, apparently by funds and other large financial institutions.

The economic atmosphere was beclouded by the start of strikes in a number of Ford Motor plants just as the company is booming along with record sales and production.

Ford ended the day with a trifling loss of ⅛ but General Motors and Chrysler also posted fractional losses, making the retreat unanimous for the Big Three of autodom.

Some of the big mail order and retail issues were boosted by news of a rise in retail sales and expectations of a profitable Christmas season.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 3.33 to 876.87.

Of 1,373 issues traded, 557 rose and 524 fell. New highs for the year totaled 55 and new lows 27.

Volume was 4.83 million shares compared with 4.39 million Thursday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose .4 to 329.5 with industrials up 2.0, rails down 1.4 and utilities up .1.

Prices were irregularly lower on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was 1.86 million shares compared with 1.77 million Thursday.

Corporate bonds were stronger. U.S. government bonds were virtually unchanged.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI) — Soybeans and rye closed heavy Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade and all other grain futures closed mixed.

At the final bell, wheat was off ¼ to 1¼; corn unchanged to off ½; oats unchanged to off ⅛; rye off 1 to 1⅜; and soybeans off 1½ to 2⅜.

Soybeans suffered a decline on disappointment over the private crop figures. Short covering on the setback led to a rally in prices.

Wheat weakened under commission house selling.

Exporters bought corn along with commission houses. Spot corn had a firm tone.

Rye weakened because of the wheat decline.

Oats lowered in the latter part of the session and December liquidation was the depressing influence.

Easy Solution For Surplus?

Taxpayers, burdened for years with agricultural surpluses, may have been consoled by the thought that the vast accumulations of food, livestock feeds and fiber might some day come in handy. This belief has now been accorded official standing.

A subcommittee of the National Agricultural Advisory Commission has proposed a national security reserve of farm abundance to be used in national emergencies, such as massive nuclear attack, prolonged drought and similar disasters. Since the commodities would be for the benefit of all taxpayers, not only farmers—the theory is—the expense of storing and replenishing this stockpile might be bearable.

The quantity and kinds of commodities to go into the reserves probably will be a matter of long Congressional debate, with Congressmen plugging for huge stockpiles of whatever their particular states produce. The advisory group offers some suggestions.

On its list are 630 million bushels of wheat, out of 870 million bushels in next July's projected surplus. The feed grains needed would total 45 million tons out of a 62-million-ton surplus. Cotton reserve requirements were put at 6.2 million bales out of a possible 1965 surplus of about 12.5 million bales.

And that would pretty well take care of most of the farm surplus. However, for a problem that has defied solution by experts, political and otherwise, for more than 30 years, the advisory commission's plan seems a bit too easy.

Aid To Education

President Lyndon Johnson has a mandate, all right. But, since practically everybody and his brother, both conservative and liberal, voted for the charisma, or magic, in the LBJ initials, the question of what the mandate is for will stand a lot of analysis.

At this stage it is quite possible that the President doesn't know what he will be asking for in certain areas. He is a pragmatist, and he has always played the political game by an extremely acute ear. But on two issues, Medicare and Federal Aid to Education, LBJ has already spoken. He told a Denver audience that this country needs 660,000 new classrooms and 200,000 new teachers, and as a "can do" man the President will certainly try to put the federal government into the movement to get them.

From even the most moderate conservative standpoint, the great danger in federal aid to education is that it will be used to shore up and extend the most dubious elements in our educational system. Several years ago this columnist made a long survey of the schools. It was plain then, and it is even more obvious now, that if it had not been for grassroots rebellions going counter to dominant national trends we would never have emerged from some of the worst phases of so-called "progressivism in education. Federal support of the system we had ten years ago might have ruined us forever.

In his concern for the schools President Johnson has taken the quantitative view. But the changes that we still need in the schools are qualitative, and they do not depend on an outpouring of funds from the federal cornucopia. Before he urges any program on Congress for increasing the number of teachers, for example, the President certainly owes it to himself to meditate on a survey that his own federal government has sponsored and financed. This survey, called Project Talent, was made by the University of Pittsburgh for the U.S. Office of Education. The President might be appalled at the idea of spending money to bolster certain things that hang on in education from the Nineteen Thirties and Forties.

According to Mortimer Smith's Council for Basic Education, which has analyzed some of the findings of the Project Talent survey, our present methods favor the recruitment of new teachers from among the worst students we have. Querying high school graduates who had gone on to major in Education in college, the Project Talent surveyors found that careers in public school teaching are more generally favored by young people in "the bottom quarter of aptitude distribution" than by those in the top quarter. They are the only ones who can stand the stupefying courses of instruction in our Teachers' college. In noting this "strong inverse relation between aptitude and choosing an Education program," the Council for Basic Education says "we are convinced that if the results of Project Talent were widely and properly disseminated, they would shock the nation."

Project Talent derived much of its information by giving tests and questionnaires to 440,000 high school students in some 1,350 schools throughout the nation. In English, 56 per cent of the high school seniors saw nothing wrong with "neither of them are"; 26 per cent said "like he should"; 17 per cent saw no need to capitalize "British"; and only half of the seniors could spell "breathe" correctly.

In other subjects the seniors did just as badly. Twenty-four per cent could not select the first words to our national anthem from a multiple-choice offering of five possibilities. Putting the year 1002 A.D. in its correct century was beyond the reasoning power of 86 per cent of the students, and 83 per cent had no idea of what "double jeopardy" meant. Forty-eight per cent of the boys and 41 per cent of the girls took no foreign language in high school.

If this is the sort of education that President Johnson proposes to help finance from Washington, the country will hardly gain from it. Better let careful parents keep their tax money at home to promote more educational grassroots rebellions in their own bailiwicks.

Goldwater Conservatives Scheming To Keep Reins Of Republican Party

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — There have been some important backstage huddles inside both wings of the Republican Party with a view to keeping it conservative or swinging it back to moderate Republicanism. So far the huddles have got nowhere.

One thing only appears fairly definite—the Goldwaterites will be able to hang onto the Republican Party's machinery, despite their defeat and despite the disorganized determination of liberal Republicans to recapture it.

In one smoke-filled back room of the Republican National Committee, Chairman Dean Burch declared defiantly that he intends to hang onto his post. Furthermore, the Goldwater gang appears to have the votes to keep him there until the next Republican convention in 1968. Insiders say the Goldwater conservatives outnumber the GOP moderates on the committee, two to one.

The election debacle appears only to have hardened the attitude of the Goldwater militants. Burch told aides belligerently that President Johnson was welcome to the defectors who deserted the Republican Party.

"They didn't leave the party; they went home," he snorted. "They belong in the Democratic Party."

Privately, Burch chortled over the defeat of Sen. Ken Keating in New York and groaned over the triumph of Gov. George Romney in Michigan. Both are Republican moderates who refused to endorse Goldwater.

Frustrated Moderates

For their part, the moderates have been holding strategy huddles to discuss how to root out the Goldwaterites. A careful survey by this column, however, indicates that they are disorganized and unable to unite around a single leader. They have done little more than complain about their plight and talk about what they ought to do.

They agree, for example, that they should concentrate on winning governorships more than Congressional seats, since governors will be able to wield more political power at the 1968 convention.

California's Sen. Tom Kuchel and New Jersey's Sen. Cliff Case, both immensely popular in their home states, are considering a switch to the state house. However, their strength is based upon their popularity with independents and Democrats. In Republican primaries, they might have trouble winning the gubernatorial nomination against the opposition of the better organized, more militant conservatives.

Indeed, a member of Goldwater's inner council, who asked not to be quoted by name, snorted: "Kuchel and Case wouldn't have the guts to run for governor, because we would cut them up in the primaries."

Fighting Mad

Yet the moderates, disorganized though they may be, are fighting mad. Pennsylvania's Gov. William Scranton has declared privately: "I don't intend to let the kooks kick me out of my party."

In California, Kuchel has already started to rally his supporters for a showdown with the Goldwaterites.

"Under the present leadership," he has told them, "the Republican Party is no longer my party."

He hopes to change the leadership rather than his party affiliation.

The overwhelming size of Goldwater's defeat has shaken some conservatives who are not gung ho Goldwaterites. Even Goldwater's running mate, Rep. William Miller, has grumbled privately to friends that "Barry has the political sophistication of my five-year-old son."

The election results demonstrated decisively that the voters prefer the middle of the road, not the conservatives. They punctured the myth that they stayed home from the polls in the past because neither party offered them a clear choice. Yet, despite the explosion of these arguments, all the signs indicate that the Goldwater diehards haven't seen the handwriting on the voting booth wall. In fact, Goldwater, after waiting until the morning after election, failed to send the usual sportsmanlike telegram of congratulations; sent a sermon on Communism and Viet Nam instead.

Political Postscripts

Senator-elect Joe Tydings' overwhelming triumph in Maryland is vindication for his father, the late Sen. Millard Tydings, who was defeated in a back-alley campaign after standing up to the late Sen. Joe McCarthy . . . One of McCarthy's cohorts in that campaign, Ed Nellor, has been a press aide to Sen. Goldwater . . . Gov. George Romney's victory against a two-to-one Democratic tide in Michigan was also a repudiation of the extremists. Two years ago, Romney was invited by his fellow Mormon, Reed Benson, son of ex-Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, to address an extremist rally in Salt Lake City. Romney accepted the invitation and used the platform to denounce extremism. Benson retaliated by circulating John Birch Society tracts accusing Romney of being soft on Communism. Though Michigan was flooded with them, the voters obviously paid no attention.

Two Wilkinsons, favorites in the pre-election predictions, were nosed out for the Senate. Soft-spoken Bud Wilkinson, the popular Oklahoma football coach, found that the voters considered football and politics two different games. Harsh-talking Ernie Wilkinson, who came to be called "Dirty Ernie" in Utah for his campaign tactics, discovered that gutter politics doesn't always pay . . . Sen. Howard Cannon's close call in Nevada was caused by unfair publicity linking him with wheeler-dealer Bobby Baker. Actually, Cannon was no closer to Baker than any other Senator and had nothing to do with his back-door business deals.

Election Result: No Rejection Of Conservatives

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—The American people decided not to "change horses in midstream." That's the true meaning of the election. Pursuing their customs of yesteryear, the people indicated their preference for continuity rather than a complete change at this time of personnel and direction in the conduct of public policy.

But to say this is not to accept a widespread assumption that conservatism suffered a setback. For President Johnson appeared to a large number of both Democratic and Republican voters on Tuesday as a conservative at heart—a man opposed to radicalism. It was this image which got across and won him votes, plus the fact that prosperity is, for the moment at least, nationwide and the international situation is such that a change at the helm might have produced considerable uneasiness both here and abroad.

Could the Republicans who class themselves as "moderates" have won the election even if they had been successful in nominating for the Presidency one of their favorite candidates?

To answer the question, it is necessary only to look at the result of the Senatorial contest in New York State, where Senator Keating, who did not endorse Senator Goldwater, went down to defeat, notwithstanding his support of liberal and moderate policies. Similarly, even Representative Robert Taft of Ohio, another moderate, failed in his bid for the Senate, and Charles H. Percy, a Republican liberal, was unable to win the governorship in Illinois. George Murphy, a conservative Republican, was, however, victorious in California as President Johnson failed to carry Pierre Salinger along on his coattails.

Conservatism was not rejected in Virginia either. Senator Harry Byrd, conservative Democrat and a strong opponent of the "civil rights" bill, was re-elected by a greater majority than Mr. Johnson received. The Southern states which went for Goldwater were not reflecting necessarily the issue of conservatism so much as they were recording a protest on the "civil rights" issue.

Realistically, the country as a whole had its "change" on November 22, 1963. For despite the great feeling of sadness and the general dismay that a President of the United States could be removed from office by such a horrible method, the fact is many Republicans and Democrats regarded Mr. Kennedy as likely to give way to some of his radical advisers and as tending to be somewhat hostile to business. When, with the passing of Mr. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson came into the Presidency, there was a deep-seated feeling that he would do nothing rash to alter the historic attitude of a conservative country toward radical and irresponsible measures in public policy.

If the feelings of many people in both parties during the recent campaign could have been articulated in a slogan, it was this: "In your heart, you know that Lyndon Johnson is really a conservative."

The President himself recognized the point when he selected Senator Hubert Humphrey to be his running mate so as to satisfy liberal sentiment. But even here, there were apologies extended and explanations made to help convince conservative voters that Mr. Humphrey would not pursue a radical course but was safe for the conservative side.

So the theory that the election was a repudiation of "conservatism" and victory for "liberalism" or the "moderate" point of view will be disputed, and the votes in the next sessions of Congress will provide a better criterion than Tuesday's election results.

The truth of the matter is that the American electorate may harbor deep differences on many controversial questions, but does not vote for a change in administration when peace and prosperity prevail. It has happened before that the peace didn't last long and war came shortly after a campaign based on "keep us out of war" slogans. It has also been true that depression has followed a period of prosperity. But the people vote on conditions as they are at the time, and not as they might be in the future.

The American electorate, moreover, is often deeply affected by a public impression, inaccurate though it may be. Thus, on the radio and TV and in the press Senator Goldwater was pictured as a rash and irresponsible person who might precipitate a war. This concept of his candidacy spread to Europe, too, where there was a sigh of relief when the news came that President Johnson had been elected.

All in all, the voters again demonstrated that two basic issues usually influence them most — economic, insofar as employment or profits are concerned, and emotional, such as the fear that American youth soon might be drafted for war.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

NATIONAL ECONOMY—Economists and business leaders have been happily surprised by the strength of the national economy in the face of a series of shocks it has received in recent weeks.

There was the matter of government turnovers in Russia and Britain, Red China's explosion of its first nuclear bomb, the protracted strike at General Motors and the uncertainties created by the political campaigns.

Yet, business conditions seem to have weathered them all. In fact, there were some signs of further advances even while these shocks were unfolding.

Much credit for this display of economic strength is being given to the tax cut put into effect early in the year. The greater amount of money left in the pockets of consumers has been flowing into business channels through retail sales, savings and investment commitments, including home purchases.

The tax cut is believed to have contributed to one of the longest sustained periods of prosperity in modern U.S. history, approaching a four-year duration with most of the economic indicators still encouraging. At present, economists believe the strong trend will continue for the first half of 1965.

There are, of course, some soft spots and some discouraging factors in the economic picture. The building of new single family dwellings appears to have slacked off from the high pace of recent years, but this statistic seems to have improved some-what in recent months. Long-range outlook is for new home construction to run below recent levels for a couple of years.

Unemployment stubbornly holds at over the five per cent figure, a rate that is unacceptable to the economists or to government officials. A four per cent figure would be more realistic and more acceptable.

Indonesian Threat

By Jeanne Kuebler

WASHINGTON — Indonesia's policy of "confrontation" with the year-old Federation of Malaysia poses the threat of still another war in Southeast Asia. Indonesian attacks on Malaysian territory have been limited to date. But the confrontation bears the seeds of a far wider conflict, for Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand are committed to defend Malaysia, a member of the British Commonwealth.

Indonesian guerrilla attacks on the Malaysian states of Sarawak and Sabah, which share the island of Borneo with Indonesia, began soon after the federation was established on September 16, 1963. Last August Indonesia extended military action to the Malaysian mainland, the Malay peninsula. However, most of the intruders have been killed or captured by Malaysian and Commonwealth forces — a fact pointed out to Indonesian soldiers in leaflets scattered over their bases by Malaysian aircraft on November 2.

Efforts to resolve the dispute through the United Nations Security Council, and through meetings of Indonesian President Sukarno, Malaysian Prime Minister Abdul Rahman, and Philippine President Macapagal have been without result. Sukarno insists that the federation was set up at British instigation to encircle the huge Indonesian island complex. He objects particularly to retention of British bases and Commonwealth forces on the territory of the new federation. Sukarno pointed out emphatically at the conference of non-aligned nations in Cairo early last month that Indonesia opposes all "imperialist" military activity in Southeast Asia. He includes in that category this country's participation in the defense of South Viet Nam and its maintenance of military and naval bases in the Philippines.

But the conflict between the two Asian states goes deeper. Indonesians, who gained independence after fighting their Dutch overlords for four years, consider Malaysia — and the Federation of Malaya before it — not truly independent but actually a front for British interests. The Malayans, in turn, who are relatively content with their legacy of economic prosperity and political stability, regard the Indonesian government as a corrupt, inefficient dictatorship subject to increasing Communist influence.

Ill feeling between the two peoples has been intensified by events of the past seven years. Some of the Indonesian rebels who took up arms against Sukarno's government in the years from 1956 to 1961 were given refuge in Malaya. Prime Minister Rahman's efforts to mediate the dispute between Indonesia and the Netherlands over West New Guinea ended by sharpening his differences with Sukarno. The dissimilarities of temperament between the mercurial Sukarno and the more passive Rahman continue to complicate the search for agreement on other questions.

Perhaps the crucial ingredient in the widening dispute is Indonesia's apparent desire to exert undisputed leadership throughout Southeast Asia, and to play a major part in world politics as well. Indonesia's population, 100 million, dwarfs that of its neighbors; Malaysia and Australia have fewer than 11 million citizens apiece. Indonesia's armed forces, thanks to some American assistance and to massive Soviet aid, are the strongest in the region. The Army numbers 350,000 men; the Air Force has about 450 planes.

Indonesia's army and its two-million-member Communist Party are united behind Sukarno's campaign against Malaysia. This unity of the country's two strongest political forces contributes to Western concern over Sukarno's ultimate territorial ambitions.

Some observers think that Indonesia seeks ultimate jurisdiction over all of the islands in the southwest Pacific. If Western influence, bases, and troops were expelled from the region, it is believed that Indonesia would try to establish its hegemony not only over the Malay peninsula, Singapore, and the Malaysian states on the island of Borneo, but also over the Portugese-held portion of Timor, the Australian-administered half of the island of New Guinea, and even the Philippines.

Filipino leaders are reported to suspect that their country is on Sukarno's "liberation list." President Macapagal is said to have confided his doubts about Indonesian intentions to President Johnson during a recent visit to Washington. Another U. S. ally, Australia, also is concerned about Indonesian military adventures and has been building up its air forces in northern Australia for the duration of the Indonesian-Malaysian rift.

The fears of these allies, coupled with Indonesian aggression against Malaysia, have already resulted in a cutback of American aid to Indonesia and in a stern warning from Secretary of State Dean Rusk that an attack on the Philippines would be considered "an attack on the United States."

Physicians Report Pregnancy After 50 'Unusual'

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

We answered a query from a 54-year-old widow who has the opportunity to remarry but wanted to know what were her chances of getting pregnant. We replied that they were very slim because conception at this age would be a sort of medical record.

We received an old newspaper clipping from a reader with a picture of a 59-year-old mother along with her newborn infant and 65-year-old husband. This Arkansas couple say the child was born in "answer to a prayer." The unsigned letter accompanying the story says: "Most doctors are not always right. We have saved this picture a long time to show it to someone."

The medical profession hesitates to accept this type of evidence as scientific. Was this woman actually 59? Was the baby delivered at home or in the hospital? Who attended the birth? Medical science may be willing and waiting to give her credit for being the oldest woman to give birth but they need a few more facts to make the case history authentic.

Newspapers usually report what they are told by the participants but do not necessarily accept this type of information as the gospel truth. Physicions who have delivered thousands of babies report that pregnancy after 52 is unusual. We might assume that after that age, it is rare.

Prior to 1900, several reports were published about women bearing children at age 58, 60, 61, 62 and 73 years of age. The record goes to the woman who died at the age of 112, leaving a daughter of 9 years. Most obstetricians take these stories with tongue in cheek because they occurred before births were registered, or the persons involved came from out of the way places.

Sometimes physicians err in giving information to the press. Many years ago the public was amazed to read about a 21-year-old Escanaba, Mich., girl who had been running a daily temperature of 129 degrees F. for several weeks. Several medicos were asked to comment and all said it was impossible. Finally, a team, including Dr. Morris Fishbein, was sent to investigate. All they had to do was watch her carefully while the reading was taken. They found she was putting the end of the thermometer on the hot water bottle next to her face.

There is no scientific reason why this should occur. Some women never have hot flashes, even though they go through the menopause at age 50.

Try And Stop Me

One of Abraham Lincoln's favorite stories of the frontier people concerned a housewife who resisted the blandishments of a traveling minister determined to sell her an illustrated Bible. "I've already got one," she insisted. Challenged to produce it, she ransacked the cabin but could only find a few scattered pages of the New Testament. The minister cackled, "Ah, hah!" but the woman stuck to her story. "We've got one," she repeated, "but I had no idea we were so nearly out!"

Fifty feet down the block, he suddenly realized what the stranger had said. It was, "Stick 'em up!" He turned terrified, to see the would-be holdup man running just as fast he could, with a gun in his hand, in the opposite direction.

One of the hardest-hitting games of the current football campaign saw Bruce High's upstart Bulldogs clinch at least a share of the Potomac Valley Conference title by holding the LaSalle High Explorers to a 6-6 tie last night at Westernport.

As a result of the tie, LaSalle and Bruce, a pair of teams which managed to win only two games between them in the conference last year, both remained undefeated in the P.V.C. and deadlocked for first place. The catch is that Bruce has no games remaining in the P.V.C. and thus stands to win all or part of the title with a 3-0-2 mark.

LaSalle, now owning a 2-0-1 mark, closes out its season on Thanksgiving Day by playing the Mountaineers of Beall. Should Beall defeat LaSalle, the Bulldogs of Westernport would have the conference crown all to themselves.

The tie was certainly a moral victory for the home team, who went into the game as underdogs to the North Centre Street juggernaut.

The visiting Explorers struck in the first quarter, driving 57 yards the second time they got their hands on the ball. The key play in the drive was a 38 yard run by Pat Flanigan which carried to the seven yard line. Joe Decker scored two plays later on a three-yard smash through the middle.

Bruce came storming back in the second period on a relentless 72-yard march. Louis Newcomb's 22-yard sweep of left end on a fourth-down-and-nine-yards-to-go situation kept the drive alive. This clutch run carried to the eight yard line. The Explorers' big line put up a determined goal-line stand, but classy quarterback John Prado, who received good protection all night, passed three yards to Rick Sarfino in the end zone on fourth down.

Gary Inskeep's try for the extra point was blocked by Dave Saveleski, but an offsides penalty gave them another try for the go-ahead point. Saveleski, not to be denied, came charging through again, however, and turned in what proved to be a decisive play by blocking the kick once more.

The second half was strictly a defensive battle, the only real threat being turned in by Bruce when Pete Ladygo's Blue and White made it to the twelve yard line following a bad Explorer punt. Pat Flanigan took care of that situation by picking off a pass and returning it to the 43.

LaSalle then moved to the Bruce 32, and, on fourth down, Jim Brannon made a sensational catch on the 15. However, the officials ruled that he had pushed off one of two defenders surrounding him to get a shot at the ball, and the play was called back with a 15-yard penalty thrown in for good measure.

Tom Kyhos came into the game for LaSalle with only minutes remaining and led his teammates downfield to the Bruce 41, but the substitute quarterback was thrown for an eight yard loss back to the 49 as the gun sounded the end of the game.

Dave Saveleski, Butch Wolfe, and Pat Flanigan sparkled defensively for the Explorers; while Tom Moran, Warner "Skull" Edenger, Don Pence, Dave Imperio, and Tom Sharp were among the defensive standouts for Bruce. The Bulldogs employed a fierce pass rush throughout the contest.

LaSalle's over-all season record now stands at 5-4, while Bruce is 4-3-2 on the year. The Bulldogs close out their season next Friday when hosting non-conference foe Valley.

Northern High School's Huskies completed their first undefeated and untied season in ten years of competition on the gridiron by notching their ninth victory over St. Francis High School's Trojans of Morgantown Friday night at Oakland by the score of 20-7.

Gary Buckel scored two touchdowns for the Huskies and the other was made by quarterback George Edwards. Edwards passed for both extra points. St. Francis averted a shutout in the final period when left halfback Dave Darby slammed over from the one and Don Darby passed to Robert Toth for the conversion.

Buckel started Northern on the road to victory in the first period when he skirted right end for 30 yards and a touchdown. Edwards hit Wilbur Hinebaugh with a pass from the extra point.

In the second period, Edwards sneaked over from the one for the game's second six-pointer and then Edwards passed to Ohlen Umbel for the point.

Buckel climaxed Northern's third period drive by running over from the three. Northern failed to make the extra point via the overland route.

The victory enabled Coach Jack Lear's eleven to give Garrett county its first unbeaten and untied team. Northern has fielded teams since 1955 after Oakland came into the grid picture in 1953.

Bauer Is Voted Top AL Pilot And He's Happy

Leads With 53 Votes, Al Lopez Is Second

KANSAS CITY (AP) — It was a happy Hank Bauer of the Baltimore Orioles as he got the word Friday of his choice as the American League Manager of the Year.

"It's the greatest thing that has happened to me," said the 42-year-old Bauer, who in this third year of managing piloted the Orioles to the brink of the league title.

"A manager is just as good as his players and every single Oriole deserves a great deal of credit for our fine showing."

Bauer's team finished third in a torrid finish, behind the New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox.

He received 53 of the votes from 83 sports writers in the annual Associated Press poll. Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox was second with 19.

The Baltimore manager cited by name several Oriole players. He said third baseman Brooks Robinson "had a great year and rightfully deserves the American League's Most Valuable Player award."

Among others were Luis Aparicio, who "played brilliantly at short," Jerry Adair, who "handled himself well at second, making only five errors", and Sam Bowens, rookie outfielder, for his "defensive and offensive output."

Bauer said if he had to pick "the most pleasant surprises among the pitchers it would have to be Wally Bunker, who won 19 games for us as a rookie."

Michigan (5-1) ranked eighth nationally, is a 6-point favorite over Illinois in Saturday's nationally-televised (NBC) game. It's the fifth meeting between coaching brothers Bump Elliott of Michigan and Pete Elliott of the Illini, and Bump has won 'em all so far.

Purdue, tied for the No. 10 national ranking with Florida and tied with Ohio State for the Big Ten lead, is a 1-point underdog against Michigan State. Florida is a 9-point choice over Georgia.

In other leading games Saturday:

Princeton is picked by 12 over Harvard, Cornell 2 over Brown, and Yale a big choice over Penn in the Ivy League; Syracuse is picked by 12 over Army at Yankee Stadium, New York; Maryland is 2 over Navy; Minnesota 3 over Iowa and Northwestern 3 over Wisconsin in the Big Ten; Clemson and North Carolina even, N.C. Garden State Race Purse Is $188,090

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (UPI)—Thirteen 2 - year - old fillies were entered Friday for the 10th and richest running of the $188,090 Gardenia Stakes at Garden State Park Saturday with the entry of Queen Empress and Discipline favored.

Queen Empress, with seven wins in 13 races, looms as the stronger of the pair in the mile and one - sixteenth race and victory would stamp her the champion juvenile filly of the year.

Chief stumbling block appears to be Mrs. Wallace Gilroy's Marshua, who beat Queen Empress two weeks ago in the Selima Stakes at Laurel.

But it was only the second time in seven meetings that Marshua came out best in her feud with Queen Empress.

The Cain Hoy Stable also entered two fillies for the race and the coupling of Up Oars and Lay Aft is third choice at 4 to 1 behind the 8 to 5 Wheatley entry and the 3 to 1 Marshua.

The others entered in a race worth $112,854 to the winner were Fairway Fun, Amerivan, Juanita, Chesapeake Lady, Mrs. B's Sister, I deceive, Dedicated A., and Dungiven.

All carry 119 pounds.

Penn Jayvee Gridder Dies

Alan Buder Had Leg Broken Last Week

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Alan Buder, 18-year-old University of Pennsylvania junior varsity football player, died Friday of a rare blood infection that resulted after he suffered a broken left leg in a game Saturday against Harvard.

So far this year 23 football fatalities have been reported.

It was the second Penn player in the university's history to die in a football accident. In 1922, Andrew Lang suffered a broken neck in a game with Mercersburg Academy.

Buder, who would have been 19 next Monday, was from Springfield, Mass., where he had played football for Classical High School. He was a student in the Wharton School of Business.

Dr. Paul Schrode, Penn's medical director, said Buder's death resulted when a multiple fat emboli—bubbles—from damaged tissue in the broken leg entered the blood and then reached the lungs and heart.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Buder, were at his bedside in University Hospital when he succumbed shortly after dawn.

Buffalo Seeks 9th In Row, Colts After 8th Straight

Hottest Pro Teams Play Jets, Bears In Sunday Games

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Buffalo Bills and Baltimore Colts, the two hottest clubs in professional football, will try to stretch their winning streaks Sunday in games at New York and Chicago.

Seven National Football League games and three American Football League games are on the Sunday program for the ninth week of the season.

The Bills, only unbeaten team in big league pro football, shoot for their ninth straight against the improving New York Jets. Other AFL games have San Diego, the Western Division leader, at Denver and Oakland at Kansas City.

Baltimore, 52-0 winner over the Bears earlier, aims for its eighth straight victory following an opening day defeat by Minnesota in the rematch at Wrigley Field.

Cleveland, leading the NFL's Eastern Conference by two full games, takes on Washington at Cleveland. The second-place St. Louis Cardinals hope to break out of a two-game losing slump against the always dangerous Pittsburgh Steelers at St. Louis.

Detroit, trailing Baltimore by 1½ games in the Western Conference, tangles with the Packers at Green Bay in an important game for both clubs. With the Colts threatening to run away and hide, a defeat for either the Lions or Packers would be a title crusher.

Philadelphia and Los Angeles, both still dreaming of a title from their third-place spots, meet at Los Angeles in a game that virtually will eliminate the loser from the race.

Dallas moved into Yankee Stadium with a two-game winning streak to face the New York Giants, who showed a flash of their 1963 form in beating the Cardinals last week. San Francisco, tied with the Bears for last in the West, will be at Minnesota to face the Vikings, who were stung by Green Bay last week, 42-13.

Monday Baseball TV Spectacular Is Out For 1965

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The proposed $20 million Monday night television spectacular, with all 20 major league clubs sharing equally in the revenue, has fallen through, at least for the 1965 season, The Associated Press learned Friday.

John Fetzer, president of the Detroit Tigers and head of baseball's television committee, gave these sad tidings to the club owners at the closed-door joint meeting of the American and National leagues Thursday.

"The Monday night TV spectacular is out for the 1965 season," Fetzer reportedly announced. "We're hopeful, however, that we can get a substitute date, perhaps Saturday afternoon."

Colts Sold Out For Vikings Game

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts announced Friday that all 60,213 seats in Memorial Stadium have been sold for the National Football League game with Minnesota on Nov. 15. It will be the sixth straight sellout for the Colts this season.

Mt. St. Mary's Booter Heads In Winning Goal For A.U., 1-0

EMMITSBURG, Md. (AP) — A Mount St. Mary's soccer player accidentally deflected the ball into his own goal, giving American University a 1-0 victory in a Mason-Dixon Conference contest Friday.

Bill Elek went up to head the ball away from the goal but instead, bounced it back for an American score. Erick Mollatt, the nearest American player to the action, was credited with the point.

The Mounts rallied in the final seconds of play and scored a goal, only to have the referee call it back because the American goalie was taken out of play illegally.

The Mounts goalie, Al Ruse, was credited with seven saves while American goalie Dick Herskowitz staved off nine scoring attempts.

The Mounts ended the season with a 5-5 record. American is 4-2-1.

Donnelly May Play For Navy Against Terps

40,000 To Attend College Park Tilt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Tom Nugent picked a good week to charge his Maryland defense with the burden of winning Saturday. It faces a heavy Roger Staubach of Navy.

Staubach picked the Terps to pieces last year for a 42-7 trouncing.

While Staubach was hampered by a sore heel, Navy was shut out three times this season. Still he has completed 61 passes.

The aerial game has been the thorn in Maryland's own offense. Quarterback Phil Petry completed only nine of his last 25 passes.

A sign of the Terp lack of scoring punch is that Bernardo Bramson has been called on to try 11 field goals. He has made six.

There's been no complaint about Maryland rushing the ball. Tom Hickey has gained 601 yards by himself.

Navy, without fullback Pat Donnelly for the last two games, has moved only 793 yards on the ground.

Donnelly may resume action against Maryland but among the missing in the backfield will be Kip Paskewich, Navy's leading rusher.

Although Maryland has been able to score in every game, it has failed to do it together with enough defense for more than two victories.

Navy won its first two starts by comfortable scores, but a tie with Pitt has been the best since.

Still and all, Byrd Stadium's 40,000 seats all have been sold. It is only the fifth sellout, three of them with Navy as the opponent, since the stadium was built 14 years ago.

The College Park clash will be one of three collegiate football games. Virginia Union visits Morgan and Washington & Jefferson will be at Frostburg.

Taking their shows on the road will be Western Maryland at Dickinson, Johns Hopkins at Swarthmore and Maryland State at Delaware State.

In Memoriam

In memory of our dear husband and father, Ernest Drew, who passed away two years ago today.

Dear, tho' you've been gone two years
Time doesn't ease the pain
We watch the road you travel so much
But watch for you in vain.
Our life and home are empty
Since you went away
But the love we have for you won't go
It is in our hearts to stay.
Sadly missed by his Wife Zella and Children

2 Hospitalized In Accident On Braddock Road

David S. Hott, 20, Pinned In Wreck

Two men were admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital yesterday afternoon after the car in which they were descending Braddock Road went out of control and crashed, pinning one of the occupants in the wreckage.

David S. Hott, 20, of 164 North Centre Street, a passenger in the car who was pinned in the wreckage for some time, sustained a hip and ankle injury and is in "fair" condition, attaches said.

The driver of the car, William K. Schnatterly, contracting engineer who lives at 1 Forest Avenue, LaVale, also was reported in "fair" condition" having sustained lacerations of his right hand and face.

City Police Officer Clarence Valentine investigated the accident shortly after 2 p. m. at 829 Braddock Road.

He and C. C. McDonald of the local ambulance service helped extricate Hott from the wreckage. When he arrived on the scene Officer Valentine got a prying bar from the cruiser and assisted in extricating the injured man.

The ambulance took Hott to the local hospital and Mr. Schnatterly was taken to the hospital by Dr. Harold Y. Allen, the policeman said.

The brakes of the car apparently failed as the two men were traveling down the highway. The driver apparently decided to ditch the car as he realized he was approaching the Dingle Circle.

The vehicle veered to the right of the highway and went between two trees and through a yard, knocking down a concrete wall which is about 18 inches high. The car was a total loss.

Mayor Earl D. Chaney will extend greetings of the City of Cumberland to the some 200 guests who are expected to attend.

The mission's headquarters at 16 Queen City Pavement will be dedicated tomorrow at 3 p.m. A number of local ministers will take part in the service planned in the mission's chapel.

During the ceremony, Mrs. Ina Smith will present flags for outside and inside the mission on behalf of World War I Barracks 1125 and its Ladies Auxiliary.

Evangelistic services will begin Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at the mission and continue each night at that time through Sunday, November 15. The revival services will be held by Mr. and Mrs. Cohn.

An open house will be held at the mission immediately after the 3 p.m. dedicatory service. Refreshments will be served, according to Rev. Cecil L. Taylor, executive director.

A pound party and prayer meeting was held last night at the mission and a number of cottage prayer meetings were held this week throughout the city.

Nine Forest Fires Reported In This District

Nine fires were reported Thursday and yesterday in the four-county Western Maryland district of District Forester W. A. C. Irwin, who cautioned that the area forests are extremely dry and hunters and others entering the woods should be quite careful.

Two more blazes were reported yesterday afternoon on top of seven reported earlier in the day. One in Allegany County burned about three acres along the Western Maryland Railway right-of-way about one mile west of Town Creek. The second was a small one along the 17-mile grade in Garrett County. The district forester had no acreage report but was of the opinion that it did not burn much.

Skydivers Will Perform Sunday

Presto! No More Tax Increase!

Gov. J. Millard Tawes hold up for the admiring glances of Attorney General Thomas B. Finan and Secretary of State Lloyd Simpkins (standing) the bill he has just signed repealing a state income tax increase. The repealer bill was passed by a special session of the Maryland General Assembly yesterday, and the governor added his signature. (AP Photofax)

State Income Tax Increase Is Repealed

Signing Follows Assembly Action

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Maryland Legislature, acting swiftly and in high spirits, repealed Friday the state income tax increase it voted in prolonged and angry argument last March.

Gov. Tawes made it official with his signature 10 minutes after the two houses adjourned from their five-hour special session.

"That takes care of the day's work," he said.

Taxpayers now can forget the one-third boost they would have had to start paying Jan. 1. They had protested the increase in a steady stream of letters, telegrams, telephone calls and petitions to the governor and members of the legislature.

Cites Prosperity

Tawes told a joint session of the Senate and House it was an "unprecedented" peacetime prosperity, and not public pressure, which made possible the repeal of the tax.

The legislature acted responsibly, he said, in voting the tax increase to finance a new $16.2 million program of aid to education and meet other spending needs in the face of official revenue estimates which indicated it would be needed.

"The clamor and outcry of individuals or groups of individuals has had no influence whatsoever on the action we are about to take at this time," the governor said.

But in the Senate, Sen. Paul A. Dorf, D-Balto 5th, one of those who had opposed the tax boost as unnecessary, couldn't resist a final needle.

"We ought to thank the many, many thousands of people who expressed themselves by letters and phone calls," he said. "You can see the people wrote this mandate."

Poke Fun At Demos

And in the house Del. Charles Bresler, R-Montgomery, and minority leader J. Glenn Beall Jr., R-Allegany, poked fun at the Democrats for accepting estimates that the Republicans claimed last March were too low.

The session called by Gov. Tawes to repeal the tax boost was confined entirely to that.

Legislative leaders adamantly refused to act on tax legislation for Baltimore City and other bills among the total of 24 introduced.

Mayor McKeldin and other city leaders had been to Annapolis and won support of Baltimore senators and a majority of city delegates for the tax program, but assembly leaders said action on them would open the gates for other bills and prolong the session.

The legislation is expected to be reintroduced at the regular 70-day session convening next Jan. 25.

Tawes' Vetoes Are Sustained By Assembly

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Maryland Legislature sustained Friday Gov. Tawes' veto of 13 bills from the regular 1964 session and a short special session which followed it.

In the Senate, there was a brief flurry over the veto of a bill which would have permitted truckers to shift a load from an overweight axle without penalty. But backers were three votes shy of the 18 necessary to override the governor.

In the House, there was criticism of Tawes' veto of a bill to prohibit dual ownership of Pimlico and Charles Town race tracks before he was finally sustained 83-44.

Tawes had cited opposition from the State Roads Commission for his veto of the axle-weight bill. The agency said it would "encourage, if not promote, careless loading practices which could do major violence to Maryland highways and, in particular, to certain older bridges."

Sen. George R. Hughes Jr., R-Allegany, the sponsor, charged that the SRC did a turnabout after the bill was enacted. He said the commission was consulted and approved the bill during the regular session last March.

Sen. Frederick C. Malkus Jr., D-Dorchester, supported his argument. Malkus said the agency was invited to testify and declined "but afterward they ran upstairs to cry to the governor."

Del. Stanley Blair, R-Harford, argued unsuccessfully for the bill to prohibit dual ownership of Pimlico and Charles Town. The sponsor, Del. Irwin Hoffman, D-Washington, who had twice marshalled the bill through the legislature, did not speak.

Blair said when the bill was first enacted in 1963, the governor vetoed it on grounds it contained a technical error. The error was removed from the 1964 version, Blair said, and the governor this time said he felt such restrictions should be imposed by the State Racing Commission, if necessary, rather than by law.

Blair noted the bill got big majorities in both houses and said, "I submit to you if it was good legislation then, it is good legislation now."

Catholic Students To Join In Career Day Program

About 150 juniors and seniors from the Catholic high schools in Cumberland and Westernport have accepted an invitation to join about 1,000 from the eight public high schools of Allegany County for the third annual career day program Monday afternoon at Fort Hill High School.

Jack A. Petry, county supervisor of high schools, said yesterday that students from LaSalle, Ursuline Academy, Catholic Girls Central and St. Peter's High School in Westernport will attend along with the public high school juniors and seniors.

Although the career day is sponsored by all of the guidance counselors in the public schools of the county, Mr. Petry said yesterday that he particularly wanted to thank Ralph P. Wimer and Mrs. Dolores C. Morgan, guidance counselors at Fort Hill, for handling most of the detailed arrangements including the assignments for student guides and the assignment of rooms for the various consultants.

The students first will gather in the Fort Hill auditorium at 1 p.m. Monday where Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster will extend greetings. James D. Preaskorn, guidance counselor at Valley High School, will preside at the opening ceremonies in his capacity as president of the Allegany-Garrett Guidance Association.

Mr. Petry will have a few comments and Mr. Wimer will make a number of announcements to assist the students in finding their way around the school.

There will be three sessions between 1 and 3:30 p.m. so that each student will have the opportunity of hearing three different consultants during the afternoon.

Career areas to be covered by consultants Monday include accountant, advertising, air line hostess, agricultural careers, artist, beautician, biologist, bookkeeper, business administration, carpenter, chemist, clerk (office and sales), contractor, interior decorator, dentist, dietician, medical doctor, draftsman, electrician, engineer, FBI, forestry, homemaker, IBM operator, journalism, lawyer, librarian, machine operator, mathematician and mechanic.

Red Cross Youth Unit Organizes

Tfc. Bernard J. Chabot, criminal investigator for the State Police, and Mrs. Ellen McKenzie, have been selected as co-counselors for the newly-formed Youth Council of Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross.

The counselors were introduced at a meeting of the youth council this week in the Civil Service room at the Post Office. Linda Brant, chairman, presided.

Following a showing of the Red Cross film, "Discovery," Mrs. McKenzie, social welfare aid chairman for the chapter, told members of the council about different things she discovered youths were doing in Germany while she was on a trip abroad. Mr. Chabot spoke to the group and offered suggestions as to how they could get some projects under way.

Members of the council have prepared materials to be sent to county schools in preparation for the annual Junior Red Cross Christmas gift box program for children overseas.

A membership of 25 to 30 was decided upon, with invitations to be extended to youths from the 9th grade up.

Plans for recruiting, program and entertainment committees were discussed as well as plans for a speaker at each meeting.

The project committee including Al Feldstein chairman, Nancy Riggleman and Gail Rodecap, discussed plans for a project during the next visit of the Johnstown Regional Bloodmobile unit to the Eagles Home and for Thanksgiving.

The project committee will meet Monday with the advisors who also plan to meet with the officers and set up permanent committees and do some long range planning.

The next meeting of the council is scheduled November 16 at 3:30 p. m. in the Civil Service room.

GOP Tax Boost Opponent Allows Demos To Eat 'Hat'

By LOUIS G. PANOS

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Politicians are seldom so cheerful as when they repeal a tax, as the Maryland Legislature hilariously demonstrated Friday.

Fittingly enough, Del. Charles S. Bresler of Montgomery County conducted the demonstration.

Bresler is a wealthy real estate developer who knows much about money. Dapper, short and personable, he is known in State House halls as "the walking IBM" because of his unusual grasp of financial problems.

But he is also a Republican, and when he rose last March to oppose Gov. Tawes' income tax increase proposal, he got just about the reception you'd expect from a house controlled 117-25 by Democrats.

"I'll eat my hat," he had told the Democrats, "if my revenue estimates are more than 1 per cent off actual revenues."

But the Democrats endorsed the revenue estimates on some charts used by Tawes in an unprecedented televised appearance to plead for public understanding of his tax proposal.

They also laughed at Bresler, rolled over his opposition to the tax increase, then gave him the governor's charts as mementoes.

Friday, when the legislature met in special session to repeal the tax increase, Bresler strode to the front of the house chamber and read a little speech.

"I hereby return these grossly inaccurate charts," he smiled.

He noted that administration experts now admit that his revenue estimates were off by only 3-100 of 1 per cent.

Then he hauled out a cake and presented it to majority leader W. Dale Hess, D-Harford.

Adorned with a miniature Maryland flag, it was covered by chocolate icing and pink decoration reading, "33 1-3 per cent tax increase."

The cake was shaped like a hat.

Mrs. Bresler, who accompanied her husband to the session, said she didn't know how to bake a crow-shaped cake.

"Flirty" Donna Douglas Uninterested In Wedding

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Donna Douglas, the spectacular blonde in the snug blue jeans on "The Beverly Hillbillies," is a flirtatious southern belle of the old school.

When not portraying the scatter brained Ellie Clampett in the nation's top-rated television show, she slutters her eyelashes and flirts outrageously. But she rarely goes out on dates and is by no stretch of the imagination a swinger.

She's the kind of girl who appears to be full of feminine secrets, not the least important of which is her age. Donna won't even reveal the age of her son, Danny. But fellow workers at CBS fix Donna's years somewhere in her mid-20s.

The well-rounded actress is divorced and Danny (about eight years old) lives with his maternal grandmother near the little town of Deerfield in Louisiana, Donna's native state.

There's an unsettled air about Donna, as if she didn't intend to make California her home. Most young actresses with a successful television series going for them buy a house in Beverly Hills or move into a plush apartment.

Not our Donna. She lives in a small and unfashionable apartment near famed Grauman's Chinese Theater in Hollywood. It consists of a bedroom, living room, dinette, kitchen and bath. Donna has furnished it with a variety of furniture and what-nots.

"I call my place a work shop," she says. "I keep everything in order and in place."

Sexiest Hillbilly

Donna chose the apartment because it is less than a 10-minute drive to General Service studios where she reports to work every morning for her role as the sexiest hillbilly in memory.

Generally her day begins with the alarm sounding at 5 a.m. She's at the studio by 6 or 6:30 for wardrobe and makeup. Her costume is simple—blue jeans and blouse. But pains must be taken with her long, golden hairdo.

Frequently the work day runs until 6 or 7 in the evening, by which time our little magnolia blossom is exhausted. Rather than tackle the job of cooking dinner and doing dishes, she stops for a bite to eat on the way home.

"I'm not much of a cook, and it's too much time and trouble to prepare a meal for one person," she explains.

Donna does keep the refrigerator filled with fresh fruit, pastry and other prepared foods which take little or no preparation. She doesn't diet and dismisses the subject of food as unimportant.

Her drab television wardrobe has not encouraged Donna to fill her own closets with frilly, girly things. She prefers sports clothes, but does have sequin and satin goodies to wear for special occasions.

She has an enormous collection of sweathers, capris and shoes, but admits she needs more fancy go-to-party duds. Her favorite colors are pink, blue and combinations of black and white.

Donna's schedule precludes a busy social life. Even her weekends are occupied with personal appearances to plug the show. She toured during the summer with Max Baer Jr. and Irne Ryan, her co-stars on the CBS-TV series.

No Time For Hobbies

With so few moments to herself Donna hasn't had time to take up hobbies or sports. She would like to learn to play tennis and golf, but settles for putting golf balls in her apartment.

Dozens of stuffed toy animals lend a splash of color to her apartment. She keeps the toys for a few weeks then gives them to various children's hospitals.

Donna doesn't live altogether alone. She has a turtle named Elmer and a canary who answers to Francis.

She drives a year-old convertible to work every day but refuses to try the thrills of southern California freeways. Few of her friends are in show business, and whenever possible Donna flies down to Louisiana to visit Danny.

Donna says she is in no hurry to remarry. Neither is she anxious to settle down in a new home.

"I believe in need rather than want," she said. "That's why I'm not extravagant.

"If you need something, okay, get it. But if you only want it then you'll have to justify buying it—like a fur coat. If you buy one then you have to think up places to go so you can wear it. I'm not that kind of girl."

London Now Tryout Town For Plays From Broadway

LONDON (UPI)—The curtain goes up in London but the author, the actors and the producers have their eyes on Broadway. That's the short story of the West End stage these days now that London has become a tryout town for the big money in the United States.

The transatlantic traffic in plays between the two big English speaking countries goes back a long time. But only in the past few years has the British product managed to convince the Americans that its origin is an asset and not a handicap. Five of the big profit-making shows on Broadway last season were British immigrants.

By some curious tilt of the balance American plays and musicals, which have so often dominated the West End, are currently having a thinner time than ever before. Some of the Broadway hits that in time past would have been automatic sellouts here have closed after a handful of performances.

Popular Music Comparison

There is a direct comparison with the popular music field. British broadcasting used to be waterlogged with American tunes—The Songwriters Guild of Great Britain even demanded that Parliament slap a quota on American music. But suddenly American songs and artists are scarce on the best-seller charts and the Beatles and their ilk are camped on the hit parades of both countries.

The most important reason for the success of British play exports is economic. It costs up to $600,000 to produce a musical on Broadway—rarely more than $150,000 here. It costs up to $100,000 to produce a straight play on Broadway—$25,000 is nearly the upper limit for the same thing here.

Price Cuts Audience

Theatre-going in New York (with seats for top shows $9.90—and scalpers getting three and four times that amount) is a big event and the price cuts down the available audience. The top British ticket is $5 (35 shillings) and the ticket brokers can only charge an additional 35 cents. There is no black market in tickets worth mentioning.

Thus the 40 legitimate theatres have a much wider audience to draw from and theatregoing is only slightly more formal than a night out at the movies.

The combination of smaller financial risk in production with the certainty of a fairly numerous audience—except for a total critical disaster—makes the London stage a more attractive proposition than the heavy investment in New York where anything less than a smash hit is an almost certain loser.

This is what has made London the biggest supplier of Broadway product at the moment. Producers are able to take chances here with way-out scripts that would be perilous gambles in the United States.

Edward Andrews Scores In TV Series 'Broadside'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Edward Andrews, star of television's new "Broadside" series, is a case study of why old actors don't die or fade away — they simply go into a video series.

Andrews is a moon-faced man who has snared dozens of top-flight character roles in movies and important guest shot appearances on television shows.

His headquarters, until recently, were in New York where he also starred in the theater.

But Broadway and the movies have fallen on indifferent times. Fewer but better plays and pictures is the rule, which inevitably means fewer and fewer jobs for competent actors.

Like John McGiver of "Many Happy Returns," Jack Lugman of "Harris Against the World" and Paul Ford of "Baileys of Balboa" (to name a few new ones this year), Andrews has had to change his entire life around.

At middle age he was forced to give up his home and familiar surroundings in the East and pack his family off to California.

The change has been salubrious.

"I did some genuine soul-searching about moving to the West Coast," he admitted at Universal Studios. "But an actor must go where the work is. And I did some serious thinking about moving from feature pictures to a television series.

"I did six pictures last year and would have remained with movies if there had been any assurance that I could do half a dozen films a year. But they just don't make enough of them any more.

"Fortunately, it looks as if the new show may be around for quite a while."

Andrews enjoys his role as Commander Adrian, the scheming naval officer of the situation comedy series. And in many respects — except for the short temper and outlandish ego —he shares some characteristics with the commander.

Unlike some of the New York actor transplants (Klugman, for example), Andrews has taken to Southern California and plans to stay here forever — unless of course Manhattan or Afghanistan suddenly becomes the world entertainment capital.

Jennifer West Gets Top Role On Broadway

NEW YORK (AP) — Jennifer West, who calls herself a 25-year-old hillbilly from Fort Smith, Ark., has been chosen to portray Eva Peron in the upcoming Broadway drama, "Diamond Orchid."

It will be the first White Way assignment of the actress who won glowing notices in off-Broadway's "Dutchman," and who is alternating also with Barbara Loden in "After the Fall."

TV CAMEOS: Dennis Weaver

How The Deputy Busted Out Of Jail

By ED MISURELL

"I'VE wanted to do my own show for a long time now," said soft-spoken Dennis Weaver. "It's a normal thing for an actor to want to do something different after playing the same role for nine years."

The slender TV star, in New York to beat the drums for his new ABC-TV series, "Kentucky Jones," was referring to his long-running characterization as Chester in "Gunsmoke"—a part that has brought him fame and such material possessions as a $250,000 home on a $50,000 hilltop overlooking the San Fernando Valley on the West Coast, and a reported $1,000,000 for some of his residual rights in the oatburner series.

Weaver was not complaining outwardly about Chester but it has long been rumored that he was dissatisfied with his "second fiddle" role as Matt Dillon's limping deputy. The tone in his voice when he mentioned the part conveyed more than his words. You got the impression that he was more than happy that it was behind him.

As Norman Macdonnel, ex-producer of "Gunsmoke," said a while back, "Denny wants to be the top man—the star—of his own series, and he won't be happy until he finds out whether he can make it or not."

Bearing out this observation were two occurrences in recent years when Weaver let it be known that he was leaving "Gunsmoke" for good—at one time to M.C. a variety program called "TV Tonight," and a second time when he did a pilot called "The Giant Step."

On both occasions, after these shows failed to attract the required attention to get on the air, he made his way back to the Dodge City jailhouse and the Long Branch saloon to chat with Miss Kitty and Doc.

Then last August, according to Weaver, he took time off again from his "Gunsmoke" chores and made an NBC-produced pilot. This led to his starring role in "Kentucky Jones" as a widowed horse trainer who adopts a nine-year-old Chinese orphan. The series debuted about two weeks back.

"The thing that appeaed to me about the series," said Weaver, "was the caliber of the writing. It's top notch. Then, too, I've always liked horses since I was a kid on a farm. In fact, I own three race horses at present. That the series happened to have horses in it is sort of like the cherry on top of the ice cream.

"After having done 11 half-hour segments to date I feel that our show has dimension. Although it is basically comedy, we can go to melodrama or poignant material in future shows.

"I'm very well satisfied with our Saturday night time slot, 8:30 to 9 p.m. We're up against Lawrence Welk on one network and "Gilligan's Island," a new series, on another. I feel certain that we will do all right."

Doing all right has been part of Weaver's makeup for a good number of years now. Born in Joplin, Mo., June 4, 1924, he showed himself to be a tough competitor in high school, where he set track and field records which still stand. After a year at Joplin Junior College he joined the naval reserve and went into service. He was discharged as an ensign in 1945.

In 1946 Weaver enrolled at the University of Oklahoma, majoring in drama. The six-foot, two-inch athlete became a decathlon star. After his graduation in 1948 he tried out for the Olympic team at Bloomfield, N.J. He placed sixth among 36 entrants.

Since Bloomfield was but a short hop to New York City, Weaver looked up an actor friend he had known in college. This led to an understudy's job in "Come Back Little Sheba," which starred Shirley Booth. When the show went on tour, Dennis went along with it in the role of a Turk, a young javelin thrower.

Following an appearance with Shelley Winters in "Streetcar Named Desire" he went into films and appeared in a number of movies. His role in one of these, "Seven Angry Men," led to his selection as Chester in "Gunsmoke."

Looking over his luxurious home and his three sons—ages 15, 11, and 5—disporting in their own swimming pool and on their own tennis court, Weaver can now nod gratefully at the departing Chester and smile happily in the direction of the oncoming Kentucky Jones.

WHAT A CHANGE!—Since he's a horse lover, there's an extra dividend for Dennis Weaver in his new series, "Kentucky Jones." He plays a trainer.

Miss Mills Has Become Young Lady

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Hayley Mills, that pug-nosed personification of English small fry, has become a proper young lady.

Hayley has turned the corner. She's 18 now.

Only a year ago, on her last visit to Hollywood, she was serenely unaware of anything but the fun of being an adolescent. Her talk was of boys, dates, clothes and rights for teen-agers.

Poof; all of a sudden she's a new British miss.

Her conversation is as different as her appearance. She's chopped off her long blonde tresses. Instead of the ponytail she wears a stylishly short hairdo. And one night recently she and her date (a press agent) turned heads at the chic La Scalla restaurant when Hayley appeared in black sheath dress and pearls.

Overnight Transformation

She nodded hello to other celebrities who seemed to age noticeably at seeing a child transformed into an adult almost overnight.

Her new maturity is evident in that Hayley was visiting Hollywood alone for the first time in her life. She stayed at the Beverly Hills Hotel, went out to dinner with admirers and talked to her parents in London via long distance telephone.

During the day she starred at Walt Disney's studio in her new movie "That Darn Cat."

SHE'S MORTICIA — Lovely Carolyn Jones plays the role of Morticia in the new television comedy 'The Addams Family' based on the famous cartoons of Charles Addams. The show appears on ABC-TV.

ON THE GO — What if an actress or singer, such as Sue Raney above, hasn't the time to visit her hair stylist? For one thing, she might take advantage of the service offered by Douglas Arthur. This 22-year-old, Los Angeles hair stylist offers a little something extra. That something extra is a beauty parlor on wheels. In the back seat of his Rolls Royce, Arthur installed the equipment of his trade, including a curling iron and a small hair dryer. Hair can be done en route to an engagement.

Skagway, Alaska, Livest Ghost Town Imaginable

Skagway, Alaska, is one of those frontier towns you see today only in western movies, except that it is the livest ghost town imaginable.

It has one street, unpaved; wooden sidewalks; false-fronted stores; and a two-story wooden hotel. Every night in the lantern lit Eagles' Hall Saloon gamblers in black frock coats deal blackjack, roulette wheels spin in grooves they began cutting in 1898, and fiddlers play for dancing.

The loneliest, liveliest in Alaska, Skagway is where the gold-hungry miners clambered off the ships from California and began clawing their way up the steep mountains toward the Klondike.

The few permanent residents of the onetime gold rush boom town return it to its honky tonk heydey every summer. But it is not a tourist trap. It's too small. Tour ships bring relatively few visitors here, and the two hotels, the Golden North and the Sourdough Inn, only have about 66 rooms between them.

The buildings were not recreated by promoters to attract tourists. They are originals. The hard country and the isolation are real. Pressed by hulking mountains, the sky a mere vent in the mountaintops straight up, the waters of the narrow Inside Passage lapping at its foundations, miles and decades from modern civilization, Skagway is a genuine American pioneer town.

The basic seven-day itinerary that departs from Seattle daily all year costs from $937 and covers the "Panhandle", the strip of glacier-laced mountains that run down the Canadian coast. It visits Juneau, the capital, explores the gold mines that honeycomb the mountain at its back, and stops in at Ketchikan, with its lumber and salmon fishing industries.

A 10-day tour that continues north to Anchorage, McKinley National Park and Fairbanks costs from $530.

Orkney Isles Offer Much To Visitors

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

Across the sea from the north of Scotland lies one of the most remote, and fascinating, places in all of Great Britain—the windswept Orkney Isles.

For years, this largely agricultural community of about 100 small and large islands has been losing its people to the great industrial centers of "the sooth," as Orcadians smilingly refer to the neighboring British mainland.

But these rugged islands still have much of interest for the tourist who wants to get off the beaten track. For the anthropologist-minded visitor, in particular, the Orkneys are a treassure.

Here are the intriguing Standing Stones of Stenness, the prehistoric village of Skara Brae and the Megalithic burial chamber of Maes Howe. Here also are the remains of villages dating back to 4,000 years ago, early Christian chapels, Viking settlements and those mysterious stone towers found only in Scotland and in the Isles.

Recently the British Overseas Airways Corp. (BOAC) flew a group of U.S. travel writers to the Scottish mainland and then on to the Orkneys via its sister airlines, British European Airways (BEA).

At the little capital town of Kirkwall, population 4,000, on the island called Mainland, the visitor steps into a world of high crowstepped gabled houses, narrow twisting streets and the 800-year-old Norse Cathedral of St. Magnus, with its massive pillars of purplse sandstone that can be seen far out to sea.

Just five miles from Kirkwall is the scene of a more modern bit of history. This is Scapa Flow, the great naval anchorage for the British fleet in two world wars.

Grass grows through the quays now and the Scapa is quiet and deserted. But on the night of Oct. 13, 1939 an explosion took place there that was heard around the world—the sinking of the British battlewagon Royal Oak at a cost of more than 800 lives.

To this day, the name of Leutnant Prien, commander of the German U-boat that slipped passed the blockade boats and into the Scapa, is remembered by Orcadians.

Today only about 20 of the islands have any sizeable population and only the main town of Kirkwall has increased its size in the last 30 years. But the inhabitants of Orkney, 19,000 at last count, still reap a good living from the land. Lobster fishing comes next in importance and the Scotch whisky industry, with two distilleries in the islands, gives a healthy assist.

The Orkneys lay claim to being the islands of nightlong twilight. From the middle of May until halfway through July, the sunset glows in the northern sky. The Scotsman's penchant for golf reaches a peak on one midsummer night when matches start between 10 and 11 p.m. and go right on through midnight.

Orkney also is an anglers paradise with some 4,000 acres of brown trout fishing. The loch season opens in March with June to August the most popular season. The sea trout fishing season opens in February.

Every two hours a bus leaves from Kirkwall for Stromness where many of the houses are built on stone piers tucked into the shelter of Brinkie's Brae. From there, a steamer sails several times a week to some of the other Orkney isles of South Walls, Flotta and Hoy.

Mounted Police Show

The first appearance of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in Maryland will be made November 10-12 at the Laurel Race Course. The group of 32 men and horses will present an unusual spectacle of color and music, consistening of a variety of intricate movements at a trot and canter pace to music.

BOATING IN THE BAHAMAS—The near perfect weather in the Bahamas makes it possible for visitors to explore the islands in all types of boats. Shown above are several colorful spinnaker full in the breeze. These 5.5 metre racing vessels are heading toward home in the annual race outside Montagu Bay. This race is one of the highlights of the sailing season in Nassau.

Nassau Gets Ready For Biggest Season

The more than 100 hotels and resorts in Nassau and throughout the Bahamas soon will be welcoming the greatest number of winter-season tourists ever to visit the British colony.

And these tourists will be able to see more and do more than ever before.

Here are some examples:

The front nine of a new 18-hole championship golf course is opening at Coral Harbour, a lovely residential development on the western tip of the island.

Horse racing fans will welcome the introduction of the hard-nosed quarter horses to the Nassau racing scene at Hobby Horse Hall. The season runs from January through April.

From mid-February through early May, a star spangled series of yachting and boating events will dominate the sports calendar. It includes races in the 5.5 metre, star and snipe classes in which 1964 Olympic champions are expected to compete. The famous Miami-to-Nassau Ocean Power Boat Race will be held in April.

The most colorful event of the year—in Nassau or perhaps anywhere else—is the Junkanoo Parade which ushers in Boxing Day December 26 and New Year's Day. Beginning at about 4 a. m. on both days, natives weave up and down Nassau's famous Bay Street in colorful costumes in what has best been described as a Bahamian Mardi Gras.

Local tour operators sponsor programs designed to make the most of every minute of the visitors' time. Tours include:

A two and one-half hour limousine tour of Nassau and environs.

A carrage drive through residential Nassau. A trip through Nassau's busy harbor to the famed Sea Gardens. A boat trip to world -renowned Paradise Beach. And finally, a visit to Nassau's leading night clubs.

From mid-December through mid-April, the hotels are expected to be operating at or very near their full occupancies. The total number of rooms is about 4,000.

Rates vary, of course. In Nassau, the luxury resorts offer doubles from $40 to $65 daily on the Modified American Plan (room, breakfast and dinner). Smaller hotels' rates start at $27 (MAP); $20 Continental Plan (room and breakfast) and $10 European Plan (room only).

Rates at the finer hotels in the Resort Islands range from $30 to $50, MAP; $44 to $75, Full American Plan (room, three meals); and $10 to $30, EP.

Many Americans To Visit Europe

Americans, two million strong, are expected to sweep across the Atlantic and engulf Europe from Killarney to the Kremlin before this decade is out. Heavy advance bookings already indicate that the tourist tide for 1965 will top the present 1,100,000 mark.

Any number of factors combine to lend a rosy tint to the travel picture for 1965. The ease and speed of travel today makes a trip to Europe simpler in some ways than an excusion to Niagara Falls or Grand Canyon. The jets, circling the globe in a little over two days, cross the Atlantic in a matter of six hours.

Hand in hand with the ease of getting to Europe goes the ease with which tourists can get around in Europe. The Europeans themselves travel inside the Common Market area without passports, and Americans do not need visas anywhere in Western Europe. Customs are a mere routine, and frontier formalities for motorists have been greatly simplified.

Reports indicate a marked upswing in escorted tours, notably the 21-day variety. A typical package, covering London, Paris, the French Riviera, Rome, Madrid and Lisbon in three weeks averages $236 with hotels, meals and sightseeing.

Prices in Europe in the winter are somewhat less than in the peak summer months, and visitors have a wide choice of accommodations. Winter, however, is the gala social season in the big cities with opera and ballet, theater and concerts, trade fairs and carnivals. There are sporting events galore from skiing high in the Alps to the famous motor rally in sunny Monte Carlo.

The hotel problem which plagued Europe in the years just after the war has been solved. Palatial new inns with soundproof walls and all sorts of push-button gadgets have risen in the capitals from Stockholm to Ankara. The Intercontinental Hotels Corporation, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Pan Am, has opened new hostelries, modern in every detail, in Dublin, Limerick, Cork, Frankfurt, Vienna, Geneva and Zagreb. Another is now abuilding in Hanover.

Americans who think of the Old World in terms of Roman ruins, Gothic spires and thatched cottages are in for a surprise. Europe today offers the tourist a glimpse of the future as well as the past, and Americans are amazed to discover that the Old World is ahead of the new in many respects. The prosperity of Europe has endowed the most provincial town with television, refrigerators and new cars.

The great cities have preserved their historic shrines, while building glass and steel structures more revolutionary in their way than the skyscrapers of New York. Typical of the new architecture and design, now visible throughout all of Europe, is the Y-shaped UNESCO Building in Paris with its array of contemporary art and exotic Japanese garden.

Startling, too, are the town planned suburbs such as Bobigny near Paris, Farsta near Stockholm, the E.U.R. outside of Rome and Tapiola on the edge of Helsinki. The Tapiola project, for example, designed by Aarne Ervi, consists of handsome apartments set in a vast pine forest like dolls' houses.

The new marvels of Europe are visible at every turn. Switzerland boasts the Grand Dixence hydroelectric dam, 7,000 feet up in the Alps; its concrete face is nearly 1,000 feet high and its reservoir is supplied by melting glaciers through a 60-mile network of tunnels and pumping stations.

France and Italy joined forces to blast a seven and one quarter mile highway under Mont Blanc which will cut 100 miles off the Paris-Rome run. The tunnel, linking Chamonix with Courmayeur, is the forerunner of many others under the Alps.

Spectacular, too, are the Europa Bridge in Austria and the road leading through the Brenner Pass into Germany and Italy. Among the best highways on earth are the wide autostradas of Italy which appear to be works of art insculptured earth. The Highway of the Sun is one long ribbon of paved road stretching through the Italian countryside from Milan to Naples.

Along the new roads of Europe, motels, snack bars and service stations have appeared. While motoring is a popular way to travel in Europe, the trains are also excellent. Typical is the Rapido, clean and air-cooled, with huge picture windows and multi-lingual hostesses in attendance. Then, too, there are helicopter tours and hydrofoil cruises. But, the Swiss have topped them all by building a mesoscaphe, a special submarine to carry passengers through the underwater world of Lake Geneva.

FOUR-PART, IN-FLIGHT ENTERTAINMENT—A new Astrovision entertainment for its passengers was demonstrated to the press during a flight by American Airlines. A stewardess is instructing a passenger aboard the 707 Astrojet in the use of the system. At the passenger's right elbow are an earphone jack and sound control knob. Available are two sterephonic music channels—classical or popular—or sound track for motion pictures. The screen also can show live television and in-flight pictures of terrain, takeoffs, landings.

South Korea Opening Up To Tourists

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A traveler tired of the usual haunts in Europe and Asia can, in 1½ hours from Tokyo, discover the unusual in the peninsular nation of South Korea.

Chae Kyung Oh, president of the Korea Tourist Service, told the Pacific Area Travel Association here that Korea has much to offer the tourist seeking the unique.

Little known until 1950, when it was suddenly thrust into world headlines, Korea has become a mecca for such tourists.

"Seoul, capital city of Korea, is a beautiful city with modern buildings of the present and ancient temples of the past," Oh said.

Tourist guides are easily available in English, French and other Western languages.

Oh said one of the most popular attractions is the island of Cheju, outside Seoul. It is a semi-tropical area where some of the finest hunting in the Orient is to be found. Pheasant hunting there is popular.

"As many as 300 pheasants a day have been bagged there," Oh said.

Presently being billed as a side trip from Tokyo, the round trip fare is $120.

The Korea Tourist Service operates 10 hotels geared to Western tastes. Most of them are new, including the Walker Hill Development with 300 rooms.

Tours provided in and around Seoul and side trips to quaint fishing villages, the United Nations treaty center and Pon Mon Jom, were cited as particularly enjoyable.

Bermuda College Weeks Scheduled Next Spring

The 1965 Bermuda College Weeks have been scheduled here for the five week period of March 21 to April 24.

Michael Fountain, senior assistant secretary of the Bermuda Trade Development Board and organizer of the annual College Weeks, said the island is looking for 5,500 to 6,000 students to spend spring vacations here.

Last year, in a three-week period, about 5,000 students visited Bermuda.

The schedule of government-sponsored activities will remain unchanged: Sunday — an evening get-acquainted dance; Monday — College Day at the Beach (Elbow Beach); Tuesday — Beach Barbecue (Bermudiana Beach Club); Wednesday — a day off. Thursday — Cruise to Town of St. George for party at Fort St. Catherine; Friday — talent-filled College Week Revue.

Chaperones for each group are again being required by the Bermuda Government.
